IRIS CREWS IS UNDER ARREST

Mrs. Iris Crewe, twenty-seven years old, former Wellesley student and daughter of the late John Thompson, Brockton shoe manufacturer, is under arrest in St. Louis charged with embezzlement, according to dispatches received today.

The young woman, a slight, attractive blonde, who married Millard Crewes, a chauffeur, following a meeting in Chatham, was arrested on complaint of her former employers, a sugar concern, following discovery of a shortage amounting to 1,088.

Mrs. Crewes, taken into custody at Murphysboro, Ill., took her arrest calmly, and characterized it as a "mistake," that could be straightened out when she talked with her former employer.

At police headquarters she said she had been employed by the sugar

BELIEVE DYING GIRL IS SHIELDING NAME OF MAN WHO SHOT HER

A diamond ring which a business man gave her and which she lost played an important role in the mysterious and probably fatal shooting of Miss Madeline Egan, the police learned today.

Police today discovered that Miss Egan was worried over the ring, which had been given to her with the understanding that the man who gave it wished to marry her. When she told him she had lost it, he did not believe it, it is said, and threatened her with court proceedings to recover the property.

By BILL CONSODINE

Out from the West where men are men and they shoot you full of holes and then jump through you for draggin' on city-made fags; a gang of ragin' redskins came to the Hub rarin' to go.

So 30,000 fans gathered at Braves Field today to see how the Boston College football players would fare and whether the Redmen would carry out their threat to shoot the Eagle on the wing, dress and devour him, or whether the dope from out the wild and wooly was wrong.

WINS 'FLIVVER' PLANE RACE AT 76-MILE CLIP

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Gerald Dack, of Dayton, Ohio, today won the Scientific American Trophy Race for light air craft, attaining a speed of 76.41 miles an hour in a tiny biplane propelled by a 16.7 horsepower Bristol Cherub motor.

Second place was won by Clyde Emerick, also of Dayton, in a baby monoplane, which was equipped with a motorcycle engine capable of 12.85 horsepower and which flew at the rate of 67.55 miles an hour.

The event was one of the preludes to the Pulitzer trophy speed classic of the national air races, postponed from Saturday until today on account of weather conditions, and was a demonstration of the speed and efficiency of "flivver" aircraft.

E. Dormoy, also of Dayton, in his Dormoy special monoplane, took third, at 52.22 miles an hour. The only other plane to finish was piloted by H. C. Mummert of Hammondsport, N. Y., at an average speed of 48.48 miles.

MILLIONS WASTED ON PLANES, SAYS MADDEN

Washington, Oct. 12. (A.P.)—The Army and Navy were charged today by Chairman Madden of the House Appropriations Committee with squandering millions of dollars "in a purposeless, meaningless, endless experimental orgy" in technical aircraft development.

$434,383,287 For Air Service in Five Years

Washington, Oct. 12 (I.N.S.).—Denying that Congress has not given the air service adequate funds, Chairman Madden of the House Appropriations Committee said today:

"Congress appropriated $1,997,370,000 for military aviation during the war and $434,383,287 more between 1919 and 1924.

HUB'S FINEST ON PARADE

Encouraged by smiling skies and rising temperature, thousands of persons turned out today and watched the annual parade of "Boston's Finest."

Cheer after cheer greeted the blue-coated policemen as, immaculately uniformed and presenting an imposing appearance, they swung through the streets to the accompaniment of stirring strains from several bands.

More than 1,400 men were in line when the parade started from Commonwealth avenue and Dartmouth street and wound through Arlington street, to Boylston, north side, to Tremont, to Temple place, to Washington street, to School, to Beacon, to Charles, to Boston Common.

At City Hall Mayor Curley and members of the City Council reviewed the marchers, who were again reviewed at the State House by Governor Fuller and Lieutenant-Governor Allen.

The officers were subjected to another scrutiny on the Common, when they passed before Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson and a large number of guests, including former inspectors and men who have been out of the department from five to fifteen years.

The parade was headed by Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley as marshal, with Lieutenant Louis E. Lutz, drillmaster, as his adjutant.

The staff included Lieutenants Charles B. McCloskey of Division 14; Edward H. Mullen of the City Prison; Michael C. Bresnahan of the superintendent's office; Archibald F. Campbell of the Joy street station; Sergeant-Major Thomas S. J. Kavanagh of police headquarters, assistant drillmaster of the depart-

MILLIONS SPENT ON PLANES IN 'ORGY OF WASTE,' SAYS MADDEN

Testifying before the President's Air Board, which resumed hearings after a recess of several days, Mr. Madden declared technical development of aviation could no longer be "safely left" to the two military services if the United States was to take its place "among the countries of the world in the air."

If credit is to be given witnesses "who have preceded me," he asserted, the experimental and development work conducted by the Army and Navy since the war "has been productive of very little, if any, advance" toward a plan which might be accepted by Congress.

"You have been told by men who should know that, with few exceptions, no real steps have been made," he said.

CALLS IT "CRIMINAL WASTE"

Citing testimony by Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army air service, that 263 pursuit planes purchased by the Army had been found deficient in vision requirements, Mr. Madden said he had "heard nothing of a charge of criminal negligence but that borders on criminal waste."

"Think of buying 263 pursuit planes that a pilot has difficulty in seeing out of," he exclaimed.

Failure of the Army and Navy to spend their money "intelligently" in the air service, he declared, is not unique, as "similar extravagant, get-no-where programs are being carried on in tank development, artillery development, chemical warfare and ammunition development."

Mr. Madden submitted a plan for promoting Army and Navy aviation at a cost of $87,500,000, which, among other things, would provide for discontinuance of all aeronautical engineering and design work by the two military services, with the abolition of the naval aircraft factory at Philadelphia and the Army engineering aircraft division.

"NOTHING" FOR $86,000,000.

He would place all designing and construction of planes in the hands of private manufacturers, with the responsibility of performance under design, and with the military services furnishing only the specifications desired.

Predicating his recommendation upon present expenditure of $86,000,000 a year for Army and Navy aviation, he said that "working backward from this sum, in other words trying to determine just how much aviation of a military character might be indulged in for this expenditure, I suggest the following:

"Fifteen hundred new airplanes of various designs, at $20,000 each, could be purchased annually, amounting in the aggregate to $30,000,000.

"Ten ground service men for each airplane, which is more than ample to properly care for the airplanes, at $1,500 each enlisted man, which I think would be a fair average to cover his Army pay, his clothing, subsistence, etc., would cost $22,500,000.

"Fifteen hundred officers, or one officer for each ten enlisted men, or one officer for each of the 1,500 airplanes, would cost approximately $7,500,000.

"Five million dollars would be a liberal estimate for the maintenance of all the flying fields necessary as bases of operation for these 1,500 planes.

"A total of $87,500,000, as against $86,000,000 now being expended for which we have received nothing."

After the first year, under such a program, Mr. Madden believed $75,000,000 annually would suffice for aviation work.

Affirming his belief in the "potentialities of aircraft both in war and in peace," Mr. Madden declared that in his opinion "we are barely past the threshold of aeronautical development."

If reports reaching him were true, he said, the "charge has been made here that military aviation has been retarded because Congress has not voted adequate appropriations." As chairman of the Appropriations Committee he would "not let that charge go unchallenged."

Reviewing appropriations for aviation both during and since the war he was "ready to concede that enough planes and spares are not available fully to take care of the air service plans.

"But in view of the millions spent," he said, "it is not too much to expect more than is in evidence in tangible results."

"Why, the demands," he continued, "of some of these bureau people who come before us would bankrupt the government. The army and navy are the last concerned where the money is coming from.

"They always see a war on the horizon and want to be ready at the drop of a hat to go after or meet the other fellow.

"I don't condemn them for that, but I do condemn them when Congress has appropriated all that the country can afford for trying to blame Congress when they find themselves in difficulty because they have not wisely applied the money placed at their disposal."

MISSING MAN'S SISTER SOUGHT TO GIVE CLEW

Westboro, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Bennett Wills of Union avenue, Framingham, sister of George Ross, missing submaster of the Lyman School for Boys, will be questioned again today by State Detective Robert E. Molt.

She is expected to enlighten the investigator as to certain phases of her brother's early life, which have been clouded.

Meantime, the authorities have pretty well exhausted all other sources of information.

Mrs. Ross has had many long interviews with the detectives, and has been unable to suggest a clue of value.

Search for the body in the swampy country in which the sub-master vanished was resumed today when fifty State troopers appeared to assist the volunteer posse of teachers, students, firemen and county officials already on the hunt.

If the body is not recovered today, Lake Chauncy probably will be dragged tomorrow; no small undertaking, for it is fairly deep, and the bottom is strewn with all manner of debris and underwater growth. Detective Molt will head the searchers.

Molt stated today that he was anxious to locate a Gertrude Parker, said to be Ross' divorced wife, with the view of ascertaining if she has received any word from the missing master. The former Mrs. Ross is said to have once lived in Vermont.

A long-barrelled revolver, used by Ross when he was working on a sheep ranch in Arizona, is missing. Detective Molt learned that it was sometimes a habit of Ross to wear the revolver in a holster slung from the shoulder.

The brass pipe, found about 500 feet from the garage the day after Ross dropped out of sight, is again a center of interest. Medical Examiner Newton now believes that he has found several strands of white and brown hair. Ross' hair answers this description.

Police Chief Humphrey recalled today that Ross had been employed at the school about twenty years ago, and vanished in a manner similar to the disappearance now under investigation. It was at this time that his first wife divorced him. His family in Portage, Me., and a sister in Framingham, heard from him to the effect that he was working on an Arizona ranch. On his return East he married Miss Lillia V. Burhoe, the present Mrs. Ross, in 1921.

The fact that Ross has figured in bitter arguments with his brother klansmen and with those with whom he worked, as well as with members of the anti-klan factions, is believed to have an important bearing on the case.

"Strongest Man" Is Killed by Nail Scratch

Berlin, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Sigmund Breitbart, billed in circus and vaudeville programs for years as "the world's strongest man," died today, aged forty-two.

Breitbart, whose exhibitions consisted of pulling against two horses, bending iron bars and tearing horseshoes apart, succumbed to blood poisoning which developed from a small nail scratch.

company as a bookkeeper at a salary of $100 a month, and was dismissed two months ago when the company began to economize.

The young woman said she was on her way to visit her mother in Chatham, where she met Crewes at the time he was mustered out of the navy.

Mrs. Crewes is said to have been married previously to Robert Donovan, a Brockton shoe manufacturer who went to St. Louis to join the Brown Shoe Company.

TOOK HER OLD NAME.

When Donovan died several years ago the present Mrs. Crewes resumed her maiden name of Iris Thompson. She is said to have a daughter nine years old now with her mother in Chatham.

According to the police, the young woman was arrested in Indianapolis in July of 1922 for the theft of an automobile. She was charged with grand larceny, received a suspended sentence and was paroled.

It is said that after her father's death the girl's mother remarried and became Mrs. G. Bloomer. Her second husband is said to have been drowned three years ago.

JURY FREES RICH SLAYER; INSANITY FIGHT IS DUE

Rockingham, N. C., October 12 (A.P.).—A court decision as to his sanity was the only thing that stood between W. B. Cole, wealthy cotton manufacturer, and freedom today after his acquittal on a charge of killing W. W. Ormond, former suitor of his twenty-four-year-old daughter, Elizabeth. The jury found Cole not guilty of shooting Ormond to death while the latter was seated in his automobile last August. Cole claimed he shot in self-defence while "transitorily insane."

HOT GAS OVEN STARTS SUMMER STREET FIRE

A gas oven left burning in the sea grill of the A. S. Cann Company, No. 148 Summer street, caused the stove to become so heated today that flames spread to the woodwork of the room, and a blaze swept over the fourth floor. Timothy A. Connolly, a driver for the American Express Company, turned in the alarm. Damage is placed at about $200.

Asleep, Walks Out of 4th Story Window

New York, Oct. 12.—Miss Virginia Chauvenet, actress and writer, said to be a friend of Ethel Barrymore, was injured early today when she fell from her window on the fifth floor of an apartment house, opposite the home of J. P. Morgan.

That she was not killed was due to her landing on the roof of a four-story extension at the rear of the building. One of her ribs was broken and her shoulder was injured.

She was clad only a nightgown when found and police said she must have stepped through the window while sleep walking.

DONAHUE GEMS TO BE RESTORED

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.)—Information was made public at police headquarters today that arrangements have been made through underworld channels for the return tomorrow of $683,000 worth of jewelry stolen from the Hotel Plaza apartment of Mrs. Jessie Woolworth Donahue on September 30.

Representatives of the persons who have the jewelry communicated with the Donahues, it was learned at police headquarters. The tentative hour for the return of the jewelry was fixed at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and it is to take place in an unnamed part of the city.

Police investigators said that return of the stolen property would not deter them from arresting the criminals if their identity can be learned.

PROCLAIM COLUMBUS DAY LEGAL HOLIDAY IN ITALY

Rome, Oct. 12.—Italy today reminded the world of the Italian nativity of Columbus by celebrating the 433rd anniversary of his discovery of America as a legal holiday.

Flags were flown on all the public buildings throughout the country and lectures on Columbus and his achievements were delivered in the schools. The lecturers were careful to emphasize that the great navigator was born in Genoa. This special emphasis is to counteract recent efforts of Spanish historians to show that Columbus was of Spanish origin.

MAYOR BACK AT CITY HALL

He stated that Mrs. Curley, who accompanied him, also was feeling much better than at any time since their recent automobile accident. The Mayor looked in fine trim.

Although declining to talk politics or to discuss his plans, it was apparent that from now on he would be an active factor in the present Mayoralty tangle.

"What's new in politics, Mr. Mayor?" he was asked.

"Not a thing, my boy. Mr. Glynn is having wonderful rallies. He is talking and meeting the people. I can't see a thing that will interfere with the election of Mr. Glynn as Mayor of Boston on the third day of November, next," he replied.

"Then it's Glynn to the finish, Mr. Mayor?"

"Glynn to the end and Glynn to win, is the slogan," he replied.

PARIS IS NORMAL DESPITE "RED" STRIKE

Paris, Oct. 12.—The general strike proclaimed by the Communists in protest against the French policy in Morocco failed today to create any serious dislocation in Paris. Taxicabs were less numerous than usual on the streets, but the trains, trams and busses ran normally.

In the suburbs and industrial sections it is estimated that in the neighborhood of 30 per cent. of the construction workers laid down their tools, and the factories were somewhat hampered by the failure of some employes to appear.

Dainty Airplanes On Sale for 'Thin Women Only'

London, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A dainty little airplane, designed especially to appeal to feminine tastes, has appeared in the market here. It is being sold for 300 pounds about $1,500. It is a one-seater and is built, the manufacturers say, "for thin women only."

The Royal Aero Club of Great Britain has granted flying certificates to seven women. Mrs. Maurice Hewlett was the first woman thus honored. She and the other women have been using a two-seater machine, which costs nearly three times more than the craft.

Charlestown State Prison Celebrates Columbus Day

Columbus Day was observed today by the inmates of the State Prison in Charlestown, as a holiday, all work in the shops being suspended. The "count" today is 763 prisoners, the largest number confined in the institution in 12 years. The prisoners enjoyed yard liberty today during which time a baseball game was played between the two star teams of the prison, the Red Sox and the Braves.

A holiday dinner, consisting of smoked shoulder, cabbage, mashed potatoes, beans, coffee, bread and a whole apple pie was served to each man at noon. The men were locked in their cells at noon and will remain there until the bell rings for work in the shops tomorrow morning.

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO

The lone eye-witness to the tragedy, Mrs. Mabel Foss, friend of the victim, fainted when the crash came and only through her incoherent story were the police able to learn details of the accident.

Mrs. Webber, wife of Fred R. Webber, carrier at the Rochester postoffice, drove him to work each morning in the family car.

As Mrs. Foss was walking toward the Wakefield street crossing of the B. & M. she saw the Webber car stall on the tracks.

Mrs. Weber was endeavoring frantically to start the machine again when the express thundered around a bend, only a comparative few feet away and crashed into the car before the driver could jump.

Only recently Mr. and Mrs. Webber had returned from an 1,800 mile vacation automobile trip.

Paralyzed Man Is Carried to Death Chair

Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Paralyzed from the waist down by the bullet that caused his capture, Edward Stevenson, negro, of Fayette County, was carried on a stretcher to the death chamber of the Western penitentiary at Rockview today and electrocuted.

Four guards carried the stretcher and assisted in lifting Stevenson into the chair.

'LADY OF LAMP' BEST DRESSED ON LINER

The "best dressed woman" aboard the Cedric, when that White Star liner which docked in Boston owes her title to a blind one-arm French soldier. She is Mrs. Winifred Holt Mather, known as "The Lady of the Lamp," for her work among the blind of the World War.

A chic silk knitted coat, worn by Mrs. Mather as she landed in Boston to help raise funds for the French Lighthouse for the war blind of all the Allies, was the envy of every woman on board ship. It was made by one of "her boys" blinded and crippled while fighting.

COAT OF FRENCH BLUE.

The coat is of ankle length and of French blue. Mrs. Mather believes the coat will start a rage both here and in Paris where the war victim got his inspiration for the unusual style.

"Hundreds of soldiers of all nations, blinded by the cruelty of war, are being taught trades at the Phare de France, the French Lighthouse I founded," said Mrs. Mather. "Men of all countries are coming to this training station.

Unfortunates who are unable to make a living by their former trades are learning to be bankers, lawyers, doctors. At the end of the course they are graduated and sent out into the world to meet their fellow men on equal ground."

"The Lady of the Lamp" is widely known for her work among the blind both in this country and abroad. It was she who founded the New York Association for the Blind in 1905. The French Lighthouse is patterned after the association and is an American service on French soil.

IN CHARGE OF FOOD.

"Forty former grocers, all deprived of their eyesight, are our latest addition at the Phare," she said. "These men have charge of all the food used and are doing fine work.

"The soldier who made my coat was unable to work when he came to us. Now he is earning money and if his work keeps up he will doubtless earn fame among the fashion world in Paris."

Mrs. Mather is honorary president of the Lighthouse with General Pershing and General Foch. She asks that all contributions to the Lighthouse, which aids Americans as well as English and French, be sent to Henry Hornblower of Hornblower & Weeks.

JAMES BUCHANAN DUKE FUNERAL TOMORROW

Durham, N. C., Oct. 12.—A special train today is bearing the body of James Buchanan Duke, tobacco manufacturer and philanthropist, out of the East for burial here, where he was born sixty-eight years ago.

The body is expected to arrive here early Tuesday morning, and funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock in the Memorial Methodist Church, with Dr. Emond D. Sopher, dean of the School of Religious Education of the university, officiating. Private services will be conducted this afternoon at the Duke residence in New York.

Interment will be at the family mausoleum in Maplewood Cemetery. The body will be placed beside the remains of the father, Washington Duke.

RUBBER RELEASE RUMOR CAUSES MARKET FLURRY

London, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Rubber and rubber shares had a little flurry today and some excitement prevailed on the stock exchange, due to the report from Colombo, Ceylon, that the Stevenson restriction scheme was to be altered to allow increased exportation of the raw product. Shares were rather freely offered, and the prices declined all around, but contradiction of the report from the Colonial office later brought about a recovery.

RING FIGURES IN SHOOTING MYSTERY

sailant or the reason for her attempted suicide, if it is true, as she contends, that she shot herself. Miss Egan lies in the City Hospital at the point of death.

She was shot while a passenger in the taxicab driven by her sweetheart, Edward Nolan, Jr., of No. 9 Savoy street, whom the police have exonerated from blame.

REVOLVER IS MISSING.

It was after the girl herself had given jealousy of Nolan's attentions to other girls as her reason for wishing to end her life that the police learned of her affair with the business man, described as a foreigner.

Nolan himself denied she had any reason to be jealous of him, declaring he liked her best of all his girl friends and that the dying girl knew this to be true.

The ownership and whereabouts of the automatic pistol from which the bullet was fired is a feature of the case with which the police are much concerned and which, they say, will have considerable effect in proving eventually whether the girl shot herself or if she was shot by another person.

The girl's sweetheart, Nolan, was barred from seeing her at the hospital today because she was sleeping and doctors wished her to gain all the strength she could for her battle with death in the critical hours to come.

NOLAN TELLS HIS STORY.

While his mother was overcome with grief at her home in Savoy street, because of the mysterious affair in which her son, though exonerated, is involved, Nolan told a Boston Evening American reporter in detail of his friendship with Miss Egan leading up to the moment of the shooting.

"I have known Madeline two months," said Nolan. "I met her first when she became a passenger in my taxicab late one night, in Egleston square, and after that I carried her many times to dances in the Back Bay.

"I got to like Madeline very much, but we did not become engaged. She was very good company and we got along very well together.

"Last Saturday afternoon I took her down to the show at the Gaiety Theatre and was with her until five o'clock. Then I met her again at 8 and took her to the Avalon Dance Hall in the Back Bay, where I left her and called for her again at midnight.

"It is true that we quarreled because she was one of the last to leave the dance that night. She grew angry because I called her to account about it, and for her part she insisted that I couldn't have been looking, because others left after she did.

"We had hot words in the cab, but she got over it and everything was all right again.

"After that I called for James Doherty, a theatrical man, who is a regular customer of our taxicab company every Saturday night, and I carried him and a friend and Madeline to his destination in Newton, and then carried his friend back to Boston.

"Madeline and I then went to a Back Bay apartment, as I have told the police. My car developed engine trouble because of the low temperature and I had to go to work to fix it.

CRIED "I'VE SHOT MYSELF."

"While I was fixing the engine I heard a shot and then Madeline screamed:

"'I have shot myself, Eddie. Tell my sisters. Please carry me to my doctor's.'

"She lay all huddled up in the corner of the back seat.

"It was so sudden and I was so excited that I did not know what to do. I took her to the hospital and notified her sisters afterwards. Last night I saw her at the hospital and she asked me: "Eddie, will you stick with me?"

"I said, 'Of course, I will.' Madeline then said, 'Will you, in spite of what I did?' And I told her, 'Yes, I would, of course.'

"She seemed to feel much better at this assurance and asked me to come to see her again. She certainly wants to live now, though the doctors say her chances are slim.

Bishop Brown Is Deposed by Episcopal Church

CALLED, HE FAILS TO ANSWER

Former Arkansas Clergyman, Now of Ohio, Out of High Office

New Orleans, Oct. 12 (A.P.)—The Rt. Rev. William Montgomery Brown of Galion, O., former Bishop of Arkansas, was "deposed from the sacred ministry" at the triennial convention of the Episcopal Church here today.

Bishop Brown did not answer when his name was called in his absence and sentence was pronounced by the Rt. Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, presiding bishop.

After an opening prayer by the presiding bishop, the chaplain called Bishop Brown's name three times but without response.

Bishop Talbot then announced that Bishop Brown had been convicted of "holding and teaching publicly and advisedly certain doctrines contrary to those held by the Protestant Episcopal Church," and recalled that Bishop Brown had been tried by a trial court and a court of review and his sentence of deposition upheld by a two-thirds vote of the House of Bishops and concluded:

"I depose William Montgomery Brown from the sacred ministry and do declare that he is so deposed."

Notice has been served on the presiding bishop and through him on the House of Bishops to appear in United States Court Wednesday morning. It was said that counsel will appear for the presiding bishop and the House of Bishops.

The church budget, with battle lines sharply drawn for and against reduction in expenditures, loomed as the principal business today. It was generally believed two budgets would be prepared, making a distinct division of the work of the national council from that of the general church.

Discussion of the revision of the Book of Prayer was another issue remaining to be disposed of.

BISHOP OVERS QUITS.

The Rt. Rev. Walter H. Overs, Bishop of the missionary district of Liberia, tendered his resignation to the House of Bishops today, explaining that continued ill-health would prevent his return to Africa. Bishop Overs, however, asked that his resignation not be made affective until his successor can take office. He desired, he said, to continue to administer the affairs of Liberia from the United States until then.

PARDEE REGISTRAR.

The Rev. Charles H. Pardee, New York, was elected registrar by the House of Bishops and his name sent to the House of Deputies for concurrence.

The House of Deputies today increased the salary of the presiding Bishop to $18,000 with $5,000 for living expenses. This is $3,000 more than proposed by the House of Bishops, to which the amendment must now be submitted for concurrence.

SUSPECT IS HELD IN WIFE MURDER

Millbury, Oct. 12 (A.P.)—A man whom police believe is Matthew Kroll, who stabbed his wife to death May 12 in Worcester during an argument over real estate, was arrested by the Millbury police today. He denies he is Kroll. Two weeks ago he disappeared after State police questioned him about his identity. He was employed at the Millbury worsted mills.

Late models

SCHWARTZ, NEE HEALY

George Patrick Healy turned Jew to marry Ida Weinberg, but when he returned to his first wife, May Cummings, he renounced that faith and went back to the fold of his father's. Photo shows him with May Cummings after the reconciliation. Healy had explained that he wanted to be called Schwartz to avoid embarrassing his intended. That appealed to the judge, but "how about me," said the wife of Schwartz, nee Healy, who had been forgotten by her husband. (Photo by International News Reel.)

EX-BROOKLINE CHAUFFEUR IN $732,000 DEAL

Only a few years ago Johnny Neal was wearing a chauffeur's livery and eating in the servants' hall in a mansion in Brookline.

As recently as 1919 he was still in the driver's seat out in Los Angeles, and when he bought a site for a little home he had to promise to pay the $1,800 purchase price in instalments.

And when he leased the lot a few days ago it was for ninety-nine years at a total rental of $732,800, to be paid him $20,000 down and $600 a month for as many of the ninety-nine years as he may live, and then to his heirs and assignees.

Neal was christened John W. and undoubtedly he will be called by his full name now; but the chauffeurs of Brookline remember him as "Johnny."

He drove for King C. Gillette, manufacturer of safety razors, who recently engineered a big deal in real estate in Beverly Hills, Cal.

The Ford of the safety razor industry lived on Beacon street in Brookline when in Massachusetts, which was eleven years ago.

When he went West to take up permanent residence in the land of perpetual sunshine Neal and his wife went along.

3 BARGES FOUNDER OFF DELAWARE CAPES

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 12.—Two of three barges in tow of the tug Bermuda on their way from Norfolk to New York foundered in the heavy sea off the Delaware Capes, and sank after all hands aboard had been taken off, it was reported today in a radio message received at the local dry navy base. The coast guard cutter Kickapoo was sent out to convoy the tug and the remaining barge into port.

HEALY HE WAS BORN AND HEALY HE'LL DIE

New York, Oct. 12.—An important bit of news in inter-racial circles came up in Brooklyn today when Mrs. May Cumming Healy, as pretty and fiery a wife as you'd ever want to see, knocked the Irish all back into George Patrick Healy, thereby showing her undying love and affection.

And from now on, the nearest that George Patrick Healy will come to the name Schwartz will be when he steps into the corner delicatessen on those few nights when May gets uppish and refuses to stew over a hot stove.

"Abie's Irish Rose" just ain't in Brooklyn any more, and the lilting light in May's Irish eyes had hardly to twinkle at all, at all, before George was not only down, but out, as the new-named Irish-Jew bridegroom-to-be of a pretty Irish girl.

"A Healy you were born and a Healy you'll die, and myal! will hang th first sock on your eye," declared May determintdly. "I'm a determined woman—and an Irish one, and any son-of-a-gun born Healy that thinks he can be a Schwartz goes out like a lamp in the wind—especially you."

"Yes, dear," said George Patrick, not at all like the Pat Healy that raised—well, with the Germans when the fighting was thickest on the Western front.

George Patrick also raised the devil in Brooklyn with the twinkle in his eye, so much so that Ida Weinberg of No. 200 Throop avenue, Brooklyn, fell like a hot of brick for the wooing of him.

It went on and on, did this romance of the big Irisher and the pretty Jewess, but the parents objected because things weren't quite kosher and while "Abie's Irish Rose" might be O.K. on the stage, it was treasuche punk—or Jewish to that effect—in Brooklyn, the Bronx or any other place.

So George Patrick petitioned that his name be changed to the good Jewish name of Schwartz—and permission was given and everything was going along fine, until reporters hit upon the story.

GOVERNOR BREWSTER LEADS IN GREETING

Explorer, After Brief Exercises, Is Taken to Portland for Banquet

Wiscasset, Me., Oct. 12.—In the presence of a small but highly enthusiastic gathering, Commander Donald B. MacMillan and members of his Arctic expedition were welcomed home today.

In view of the banquet waiting the MacMillan party at Portland, the local exercises were brief.

They took place on the steps of the old custom house, a short distance from the landing stage where the explorers stepped ashore again after months of absence in the Far North.

After being stormbound at Monhegan Island since Saturday, the Bowdoin and Peary got away early today, and reached Wiscasset about 10:20.

Samuel J. Sewall, prominent street railway man, extended a welcome in behalf of the town, and introduced Governor Ralph O. Brewster, who said:

"I hope I can get back to my college days long enough to lead three cheers for Mac."

He then presented the explorer, who handicapped by hoarseness, explained he had not time to give an account of his experiences, but would return soon for that purpose.

DINNER IN PORTLAND.

Commander MacMillan said a few words in praise of his crew and the National Geographic Society, and the ceremonies were over.

The entire party, accompanied by Governor Brewster and Vive-President Lagorge of the National Geographic Society, then entered automobiles and departed for the Rotary Club dinner at Portland.

The start from Monhegan Island was made at 5:20 this morning, when the Peary backed from the dock through the North Passage between Smutty Nose and Monhegan. With Captain George F. Steele of Roxbury, Mass., on the bridge, the steamer turned in almost her own length with the sea breaking on rocks on either hand, and passed out to open water.

About fifteen minutes later the Bowdoin, under a spread of canvas, rounded the southern point of Mana Island which forms the west end of the harber.

IN ROUGH WATER.

For approximately eighteen miles to the mainland the Peary made top heavy by the three naval amphibian planes perches on her hurricane deck, took the combers over her bow.

At nine o'clock, when well up the river, the steamer laid to, and waited for the Bowdoin, which took the lead under auxiliary power and was the first to dock.

As the two battered vessels swung into view down the stretch of the Sheepscot river, a tremendous cheer went up from the assembled crowd, to be answered by those aboard the craft.

These included relatives of the explorers, who went to Monhegan Island to greet them the day the expedition arrived there.

The only member missing today was Lieut. Comdr. Byrd, Jr., commanding the Navy airplane personnel, who was transported to the mainland on Saturday and hurried to Washington.

Clearing from Monhegan Island at 5:30 this morning, the Bowdoin and Peary crossed the eighteen miles of open sea without event, and passed into the Sheepscot River for the twelve-mile slow run to Wiscasset.

Their progress was reported by Lieutenant Commander Eugene F. McDonald, Jr., by radio from the Peary in two-way communication with Station WCSH in Portland. This information was picked up and received by the crowd at Wiscasset through loud speakers at the wharf.

The first message came from Commander MacMillan at 5130, when he announced:

"We are on the way and just this moment left the harbor. It was a tough place to get out of. It was due to good seamanship of our crew that it was accomplished. It was a hazardous move with danger of going on the rocks or smashing small craft in the harbor.

"We gave her the power and away we went, full speed ahead. We are out in the Atlantic and it will be only a matter of an hour when we will be in the lee of the mainland. It is like a mill pond compared with what it has been here."

While crossing from Monhegan Island the Peary was saluted by the steamer Ruth of the Bull line, this being the first salute from an American craft received in the entire journey from the North.

SKIDDING ADDS TO DANGER

SAVE-A-LIFE!

The campaign is making its effects felt. Thirteen persons were killed in Massachusetts last week by motor vehicles, according to Registrar Goodwin's report, but this number is thirteen less than the preceding week.

In 1924 the same number—thirteen—were killed in the same week.

Autoists are now driving in the season of greatest hazard—Autumn. Leaf-skidding, stalling, headlight glare, battery failure and blowouts go to compound the endless perils awaiting the autoist and pedestrian.

The Boston Evening American's "Save-a-Life" investigators in their hunt for conspicuously safe drivers have found much to be appalled at in the carelessness of most drivers. In fact the extremely safe driver is at a premium.

Accidents caused by leaf skidding are due to the false aspect presented by the leaves. A driver believing himself on a dry road finds, when he attempts to stop quickly, that the moisture gathered underneath the leaves has formed a wet surface for him instead.

SHORT DAY ADDS DANGER.

The sudden change in the weather is responsible for stalling and battery failure, while blowouts result from the fact that most of the tires in use are the remnants of a long Summer season.

Shorter days, resulting in the use of headlights, enhances the dangers confronting the motorist who, during the long Summer evenings, has become unaccustomed to their glare.

A Boston Evening American investigator during a seventy-five mile swing around the Hub, going to Quincy, Hingham, Weymouth and other South Shore towns, Brockton, Canton, Dedham, the Newtons and Waltham, within the past few days, found little predisposition on the part of the vast majority of drivers to proceed cautiously where the wet pavements made the streets hazardous for both motor cars and pedestrians. Out of all of those observed only three or four made it easy for people on foot to cross the streets safely without virtually leaping for their lives.

On the Nantasket road in Weymouth, the investigator blew his horn in signal that he was about to pass a Ford touring car, but as he drew alongside, the driver, a woman, instead of playing safe on the wet road, stepped on the gas lever and began to race.

This and numerous other similarly thoughtless acts on the part of drivers the Boston Evening American is opposing vigorously in its "Save-a-Life" drive, with the objective of materially reducing the death toll by auto accidents, which is yearly climbing to abnormal heights.

REWARDED DAILY.

Every day ten safe autoists are rewarded by the Boston Evening American. A $20 gold piece is the reward. The winners of these awards are selected by the investigators of the Boston Evening American after a thorough investigation as to their qualifications for the honor.

In a like manner, fifty little children, who dodge death by automobiles through care in crossing streets properly, are also given $2 each.

In order to obtain their rewards all the winners have to do is to call at the office of the "Safe-a-Life" Editor on the first floor of the Boston Evening American Building, Winthrop square, any day except Sunday, before 5 p. m. The reward offer for both class winners expires one week from date of first publication.

The numbers of auto winners are repeated daily for one week unless reward is called for in the meantime. The names of children winners are printed daily under the same conditions, but for three days only.

WATCH FOR YOUR NAME.

The Boston Evening American intends to do all that is possible to cut down automobile fatalities, which totalled 938 in Massachusetts alone during the past fifteen months. Of this number killed 605 were adults and 333 little children.

If you aren't a careful driver become one and then watch the Boston Evening American for the publication of your name as a reward winner. Ten persons win a reward each day and there aren't so many careful drivers to select from.

Children and parents of children also watch the Boston Evening American for the names of the "safety first" children of the streets. Each day scores of these happy winners are coming to the office of the "Save-a-Life" Editor to claim their rewards.

Elizabeth McLellan, 10 years, of 89 Albion street, one of the many winners of a two-dollar bill is the pride of her neighborhood. Always on the alert for automobiles while crossing a street she is an example of the type of child being chosen by the Boston Evening American.

WOMEN MORE THOUGHTFUL.

As a rule women drivers are the most thoughtful. Among those picked out by the Boston Evening American investigators is Mrs. Alice G. Esterberg of No. 187 Church street, Watertown, a business women who spends a great deal of her time at the wheel of her automobile.

Mrs. Esterberg was discovered by an investigator near Marion road and Spring street, Watertown, in the vicinity of three schools, Francis, Phillips and High. She drove exceptionally slow, watched carefully, sounded her horn persistently and gave pedestrians, including the children, every opportunity to cross the streets in safety.

BROUGHT RELIEF AFTER 2 YEARS SUFFERING

BY USING TANLAC

"The makers of Tanlac will always have my warmest thanks, for I don't consider it any exaggeration to say I owe my life and present good health to Tanlac," is the striking statement of Andrew Groeschner, fireman.

"Words simply can't express the misery I endured for 2 years from indigestion. At times gas pains would catch me around the heart and almost cut off my breath. These awful pains would last two and three hours. My nerves were all unstrung. I slept poorly and got in such a bad way that my days seemed to be shortening rapidly.

"I tried everything, but disappointment was my only reward until I began taking Tanlac. I have been taking Tanlac off and on for a year now and feel so different that there's no room for comparison. I eat good and sleep good and feel that Tanlac has given me a new lease on life."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute.

CAMBRIDGE RESIDENT'S FUNERAL TOMORROW

The funeral of David W. Deshler, well-known Cambridge resident, for forty-two years employed by the United States Rubber Company at various plants, will be held tomorrow afternoon, with services at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Maud Clough, No. 131 Magazine street, that city. Mr. Deshler died Friday at New London, Ct. He was one of the oldest employes, in point of service, with the United States Rubber Company. More recently he had been employed at New Haven.

CUTTER TAMPA TOWING IN C G 238

Rescued twenty-five miles southeast of Cape Cod light after floundering in angry seas for 30 hours, Commander Charles B. Hannum and the crew of seven men aboard the CG-238, are being towed to port by the Coast Guard Cutter Tampa.

Buffeted by a 75-mile gale four CG boats, the 238, 128 and 147, waged a terrific engine and man fight against the elements only to find that the fuel supplies became exhausted and that the problem of making port under their own power had to be abandoned.

The CG-128, according to radio dispatches, communicated to the Nantucket station, was rescued 150 miles out to sea by the Cunard liner Cameronia, bound from New York to Glasgow.

During the height of the storm on Rum Row some of the seams in the CG 242 opened and the boat began taking water. For some time her pumps were sufficient to offset the inroads, but eventually the elements were triumphant. The small boat signalled for assistance and another of the fleet went to her aid.

Saturday night and all day Sunday the CG 242 was under tow, headed for the base off City Point. Early today it was found impossible to make the goal. And, within sight of the floating base, the cutter was beached on the flats off Castle Island. Temporary repairs [illegible] made, after which she will be hauled out for full repairs.

The CG-147, attached to the New London (Ct.) station was picked up in the near vicinity, according to radio messages, by the naval tug Mojave, coast guard service.

Those to be rescued with Bos'n Hannon were:

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsified Creosote That Is Pleasant to Take

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.

80 CANDIDATES FOR 18 PLACES AT LYNN POLLS

Hot Contests to Mark Primaries in 3 Cities Tomorrow; Women in Race

Primaries in Somerville, Cambridge and Lynn tomorrow inaugurate the Fall election season in Greater Boston.

An unusual amount of interest in the primaries is being manifested in each city, and the presence of women among the candidates has added to the gayety of nations.

The most heated campaign in the history of the Shoe City closes in Lynn tonight, with eighty persons fighting for eighteen nominations.

Mayor Quinn

Ralph W. Robart

Charges of inefficiency and graft, promises and recriminations have been aired by the various candidates. The only woman candidate for the Lynn mayoralty, Della H. Clifford, seeks to install a budget system in the city. The offices for which primaries are held are: Mayor, four councillors-at-large, six school committeemen, and one councillor from each of the seven wards.

BIG SOMERVILLE FIGHT

Interest in the municipal primaries in Somerville is centered in the four cornered contest for the Republican nomination for Mayor. There are also warm aldermanic contests in the Republican ranks in each of the seven wards of the city and a school committee contest in Ward 4.

The Somerville Democrats have aldermanic contests in Wards 1, 2, 3 and 6 and school committee contests in Wards 2 and 7. The first woman to enter the political arena in Somerville makes her appearance in the lists tomorrow. She is Mrs. Edith Davidson of No. 14 James street, a candidate for the nomination for alderman on a platform of safety for children.

John Phelan

R. S. Bauer

In Cambridge excitement waxes high over the mayoralty fight, in which Mayor Edward W. Quinn is opposed by Ralph W. Robart, councillor-at-large, and James B. King.

McCARTHYS IN RACE.

To inject an element of uncertainty into the fights, there are four McCarthys among the contestants, three of them bearing the given name of John.

The voters will have their first chance to test out the new elimination primary under the Plan B charter. Under the provisions of this charter in the primaries will be the candidates in the November election.

There are seven candidates for the three places on the school committee, and the Public School Association has endorsed the re-election of Charles F. J. McCue and Mrs. Jennie W. Brooks. One woman is in the field for councillor-at-large, namely Florence Lee Whitman.

ADVERTISING CLUBS OPEN CONVENTION

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 12.—The New England district of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World began its convention today, with an attendance expected to reach or exceed 1,200 and to be representative of every large business center in New England. The publicity club of Springfield is the entertaining organization.

Frederick W. Bliss, chairman of the New England district, responded to the address of welcome by Mayor F. C. Parker and C. K. Woodbridge, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, spoke on "Organized Advertising."

Balkans' Fate Rests With Queen Marie Who Is to Write for the American

Queen Marie of Rumania as she appeared in August last during a visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Greaves in Madoc, Wales, whose grandchild, Mary Grey Shaw, is in the Queen's arms. It was a memorable scene in Bucharest when the royal procession, headed by King Ferdinand and Queen Marie (at right), went to the coronation ceremonies three years ago.

RESCUED CUT BY ROCKS IN WRECK

Melbourne, Fla., Oct. 12.—Fishermen and other volunteers early today were searching the rocks and jetties for three additional bodies expected to bring to fourteen the death list of the launch Clara B., capsized in the Atlantic at the mouth of Sebastian inlet late yesterday with a party of twenty-three, principally Kansans.

The eleven bodies already recovered have been identified tentatively as those of the following persons:

Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Barton Wichita, Kansas.

Miss Mabel Larson, Wichita, recently of Omaha.

D. U. Ruckles, Wichita.

Miss Loretta Dreiling, Wichita.

Mrs. Locke Davidson, Melbourne, formerly of Wichita.

C. E. Roach and son, Donald, of Plevna, Kansas.

Harry Coppock, Kansas City.

Frank Driscoll, Melbourne.

A. L. Wagstaff, Kansas City.

The missing are listed as John Salmans, a Mr. Husted and a Mr. Davidson, all of Wichita.

The rescued include Captain Ed Arnold, Malabar, Fla., owner and skipper of the boat; a Mrs. Ruckles, presumably Mrs. D. U. Ruckles, wife of the man by that name who was drowned; Mr. and Mrs. David Barnes, Wichita; a Mrs. Dickson, believed to be from Dodge City, Kansas; Mrs. Catherine Hill, Paul's Valley, Okla.; a Mr. Campbell and a Mr. Sears of Wichita, and Locke Davidson, manager of the Melbourne Farms Company, hosts to the party of junketeers.

HOMEOPATHS DISCUSS ORTHOPEDIC SURGERY

Springfield, Oct. 12.—Physicians from many parts of the East were present when the Eastern Homeopathic Medical Association got down to convention business here today after a preliminary session last night devoted mainly to greetings and entertainment numbers. The morning session today was devoted to orthopedic surgery, while in the afternoon materia medica and internal medicine were stressed. Must interest was expected to focus on the addresses of Dr. Louis K. Kaufman of New York and Dr. Leon T. Ashcraft of Philadelphia on cancer of the bladder from the viewpoints of surgery and radium treatment.

Dr. Howard Moore of Boston is also among those who will speak.

SHENANDOAH ON TRIP TO 'TEST FORD MAST'

Washington, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The reasons for sending the Shenandoah to the Western flight was to test the Ford mooring mast at Dearborn, Mich., Captain G. S. Lincoln, attached to naval operations, testified today before the naval court of inquiry into the wreck of the airship.

In asking that the mast be tested as speedily as possible, W. B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Company, said the army wanted to build a similar mast at Scott Field.

Captain Lincoln also disclosed that decision to postpone the Mid-Western flight from July to September was made at a conference between Commander Zachary Lansdowne, captain of the ship. Admiral EBerle, chief of naval operations, Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, and Captain Lincoln.

The witness said at that time Admiral Eberle had emphasized that the department wanted Commander Lansdowne to have discretion in practically all circumstances.

AIR MAILMAN'S DEATH PROBED

Bellefont, Oct. 12.—Investigation of the death of Mail Pilot Charles M. Ames, 32, of Cleveland, opened today under the direction of C. F. Eggs, superintendent of air mail. The aviator's body was found yesterday six miles east of here, sitting in the wrecked plane, after a search of ten days.

In view of the report of Coroner W. E. Heaton of Center County, that the aviator died from fracture of the frontal bone, the investigators were expected to submit a formal finding to the postmaster general that the Ames' death was unavoidable and occurred while the pilot was in pursuit of duty.

Ames' parents who live in Los Angeles, wired Paul Ames, the pilot's brother, to have the body cremated and send the ashes to Jackson, Mich., where the family has a burial plot.

First of Her Series of Articles to Appear in This Paper a Week From Today

Diplomats declared today that a new war looms in the Balkans with Queen Marie of Rumania as the sole arbiter of the destiny of millions.

The other day Rumanian police discovered a plot to assassinate the Queen and her consort at the celebration of the union of Rumania and Bessarabia at Jassi on Sunday.

Nevertheless her Majesty will find time from the pressing affairs of state to write daily articles of interest to American women, which will appear in the Boston Evening American starting Monday, October 19.

These will be entitled "Queen's Counsel," and will deal with the home, marriage, love and kindred topics.

SETS ROYAL PRECEDENT.

It will be the first time that a reigning sovereign has consented to write daily for the American press for an indefinite period.

As a queen, Marie of Rumania is noted throughout Europe for her tact and diplomacy as well as unusual beauty.

As a mother she has raised six beautiful daughters, two of whom became queens in their own right, and the maternal spirit was further evidenced during the war when Her Majesty became a nurse.

The plot to assassinate the queen and King Ferdinand on Sunday was charged to Bolshevists, whose leader, Alexander Sandrovici, a former Russian officer, and two alleged accomplices were arrested.

Diplomats agree that a most menacing condition again exists in the Balkans and that it will require all the skill of Queen Marie to avert war with Russia over the possession of Bessarabia.

MIGHT MEAN WORLD WAR.

It is admitted that other countries would necessarily be drawn into the conflict, and that possibly the peace of the world depends on Queen Marie.

Nevertheless, Her Majesty will find time to write her messages to American women, basing her articles on fifty years experience as princess, wife, mother, war nurse, sovereign and counselor of her people.

Following in the footsteps of her predecessor, "Carmen Sylva," she already has a considerable literary output, ranging from fairy tales to fiction.

Queen Marie writes with power and knowledge of human nature, her thoughts being phrased in simple, easily understood language.

MORRIS GEST CALLS ON THE GOVERNOR

At the latter's invitation, the "master of spectacle" formed one of the Governor's reviewing party of the Boston police parade in the executive stand in front of the State House, which included Adjutant-General Jesse F. Stevens and staff. Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson and Councillors George E. Curran and Charles L. Burrill.

"I don't need to explain it," said the distinguished visitor. "I found that the Governor knew it already."

FRENCH TO LOSE U. S. FLIERS

Fez, French Morocco, Oct. 12 (A.P.)—Approaching dissolution of the Sherifian Escardrille, composed of American aviators volunteering for service against the Moroccan rebels, was announced today in an official communication.

"This escadrille," the communique says, "now is reaching the end of its activities. Its members have shown themselves worthy of their great reputations.

"A number of other escadrilles will be moved to Algeria at an early date."

Iouezzan, French Morocco, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The American volunteer aviators forming the Sherifian squadron are intensifying their activities in an effort to inflict as much damage as possible on the Riffian forces before the continuing rains make further flights impossible. They bombarded Abd-el-Krim's own stronghold, Ain Berda, in the heart of the Beni Ouriagel country. The town lies at the base of a precipitous mountain system, and is strongly entrenched.

The airmen were greeted with heavy volleys, but flew close to the ground and destroyed several blockhouses.

BEBE DANIELS CUTS LOOSE AT FENWAY

Features in a Farcial Comedy With the Speed of a Harold Lloyd

If you fail to acquire some good laughs from "Lovers In Quarantine," the current feature film at the Fenway, you are safely immune from comedy that is infectious.

Bebe Daniels has had many roles of a comic nature, but, as the Tomboy sister in this film, she fairly cuts loose and dashes along through a series of almost unbelievably impudent antics with the speed of a Harold Lloyd.

The story is, of course, broad farce—overhearing her elder sister's plans for eloping to Bermuda, Bebe locks her in a closet and keeps the sister's appointment in the stateroom on board the steamer.

Here is a situation along the lines of an Avery Hopwood bedroom farce, but the scenarist spares you and the result is no more risque than an escapade in the "Pickwick Papers"—and just about as amusing.

In these days of double-time drama, spoken and silent, bed-chamber locale is a hard-working pretext, but when it is handled as nicely as in "Lovers In Quarantine," the scenarist should be singled out for conspicuous merit.

NOVARRO ONCE TRIED TEACHING

Ramon Novarro

With a flair for the artistic which he had inherited from his Spanish antecedents, Ramon Novarro, star of "The Midshipman," which comes to Loew's State Theatre this week, [illegible] on a musical career of singing. He changed his mind, however, when he came to Texas from Mexico and decided to teach it instead. No sooner had he started as a tutor when a noted vaudeville dancer came along and induced him to join her in a dance extravaganza. After his vaudeville tour, which ended in Los Angeles, he made a stab at pictures, and there he has remained.

PHIL WHITE EXPECTS TO VISIT SALEM ST.

"My name is Solomon Levy,
"My home's on Salem Street."

This familiar refrain from the song of the second hand clothing dealer of Boston has been sung hundreds of times to Phil White who has the role of Solomon Levy in Anne Nichols' comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose" at the Castle Square Theatre. The song has been sung at White in a "kidding spirit," but it has aroused in him a great desire to see the site of the abode of the Solomon Levy of the old song. And Salem street will be one of the first places visited when White has an opportunity to go sight seeing here.

"Old Solomon Levy must have been a good sort of scout to get himself immortalized in song," says White, "and I want to see his home."

Bostonians Journeying to and fro Across the Atlantic

Many of Smart Set to Make Winter Stays in England and the Continent

Betty Alden

STEAMSHIPS OUTWARD AND INWARD bound carry each a quota of notable Bostonians, of these none receiving a heartier welcome home than goes to the Frederick Silsbee Whitwells of Marlboro street and Osterville, who came in via the liner Paris, which sailed from French ports in the mid-week. The Whitwells have made a long stay abroad.

FOR THEM A VISIT in England is one long gala occasion, for they've scores of highly placed friends in the British capital. Boston society boasts an unusually handsome matron in Mrs. Whitwell, whose stately height, great good looks, perfect costuming make her a marked figure wherever the Smart Set foregathers.

MRS. ROCKHILL BREVOORT POTTS has gone across the ocean again on another of her frequent trips between Europe and America. Mrs. Potts has an interesting young daughter, Miss Anita Potts, who's making a very definite niche for herself in the world of art, and who has studied abroad in famous ateliers.

THIS LATEST JOURNEY of Mrs. Potts is to be but a short one, for I understand she's returning early in November. In all probability early December will see this attractive New Yorker (such an acquisition to Boston's upper circle) established for the Winter in her home in West Hill place.

MRS. PRESCOTT EVARTS and Miss Elizabeth Evarts sail outward on La Savoie, and the same steamship carries over Mrs. Howe Volkman, her son, Denison Volkman, and the baby, Gordon. The Volkmans go back to their Paris home, after a stay on this side with relatives.

A LEISURELY CROSSING by the Dante Alighieri was chosen by Miss Fanny Phillips and Miss C. T. Phillips, year round members of the distinctive colony at Hanover. The Misses Phillips went via the Azores, Lisbon and the Mediterranean, always an attractive itinerary. The George D. Latimers were also aboard the Dante Alighieri.

COLONEL ARTHUR WOODS and Mrs. Woods of New York and Bar Harbor have come to town and were week-end guests down at Gloucester for the wedding ceremonial of their nephew, Joseph W. Woods, and Miss Priscilla Pollard celebrated in St. John's Church.

ALSO IN TOWN for the festivities, and of the Woods connection, are Mr. and Mrs. Norman R. Sturgis (Harriette F. Woods, sister of the bridegroom), who make their home in Albany, N. Y. Mrs. Arthur Woods was Helen Morgan Appleton, and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods, the bridegroom's mother, was Harriette G. Cotton-Smith.

MR. WOODS TAKES his bride abroad for the wedding journey, and they'll sail aboard La Savoie, to be gone four or five weks! The bridegroom left Harvard in mid-career (he belongs to the 1926 class) to embark in business.

THE BRIDE MOVES within the smart Vincent Club-Junior League circle, and came out some three or four years ago. Summers are spent at the waterside estate of her mother, Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard, at Eastern Point, Gloucester.

Staff Photograph

MRS. ELIOT WADSWORTH will be a Boston hostess this Winter, with an establishment in Marlboro street, No. 180. Mrs. Wadsworth was formerly Mrs. Guy Scull, born Whitman.

ROSA PONSELLE IN RECITAL

Rosa Ponselle, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, gave the best performance she has been heard in here, before a large audience at Symphony Hall.

Mme. Ponselle arranged a much better program than usual, and she sang with a great improvement in artistic skill. In a group which included "Tre giorni son che Nina" by Pergolesi, and Wagner's "Traime" her art was displayed to excellent advantage. The "Cavatina," from "Il Trovatore," she sang with dramatic power and in excellent voice.

Though the quality of her voice seems to have declined somewhat, she can still challenge all singers from the standpoint of gorgeousness and splendor of tone and range. And on the artistic side she has made great strides.

KNIGHTS TO GREET GEST

William D. Cunningham, former member of the New York assembly, will be the principal speaker this evening at 6 o'clock in Hotel Westminster at the annual Columbus Day dinner of Bishop Cheverus Fourth Degree Assembly of the Knights of Columbus.

This year's banquet will be larger and more enthusiastic than ever owing to the interest manifested by the members of the assembly. Morris Gest, producer of "The Miracle Man," will also be a speaker.

The executive committee in charge of the dinner and entertainment consists of: Navigator, John F. Sheehan, chairman; Eugene L. Corbett, secretary; Pasquale Carbone, F. A. Wilnauck, Edward F. Richards, Edward F. Ferry, Edward A. Hurley, William O'Brien, Maurice J. Cashman, Joseph M. Mahoney, John J. Quirk, Daniel G. Slattery, William J. Reilley, Timothy J. Crowley, William I. Leonard, James J. Doherty, Michael Driscoll, John H. Gordon, Joseph F. O'Neill and John Jennings.

MISS NEWCOMBE LAUDS STAGE WORK

Jessimine Newcombe of the Copley Theatre is one member of the profession who holds exalted opinions of the stage as a moulder of fine character. Miss Newcombe believes that the stage furnishes one of the best means for self expression that there is in the allied arts. It is an education as broad in scope as that which may be obtained in the finest colleges of the land.

Furthermore, Miss Newcombe maintains that the stage actually develops one's character, making it nobler and broader in thought and action. "In my several years of association with actors and actresses," she says, "I have yet to find a single individual who has really become narrow-minded or selfish."

TECH RULES WOMEN MAY SMOKE IN HALL

Women will be allowed to smoke in Walker Memorial dining hall of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, according to a ruling of the executive committee.

The hall was originally intended for male students only, but coeds and stenographers have been eating here for the past few years, and a section of the dining hall is set aside exclusively for their use.

There has been no evidence of the smoking as yet, however, and students are wondering who the first girl to break the precedent of the hall will be.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS TRADE ASSOCIATION CASE

Washington, Oct. 12.—The government lost in the Supreme Court today in its efforts to reopen the trade association cases. These cases were decided at the last session in favor of the Maple Flooring and the Cement Manufacturers' Associations, whose method of collecting and exchanging trade information was attacked unsuccessfully by the government as constituting unfair business methods.

SUN EXALTED IN ARIES AT BIRTH OF O'NEIL

J. Pierpont Morgan's Horoscope Similar to That of Hub Banker

Mrs. Catherine Howard Thompson, of No. 199 Audubon road, who claims to her credit the prediction during the Wilson administration that when the Republicans came into power Senator Harding would be elected President, has drawn up the horoscopes of the candidates in Boston's mayoralty fight.

These horoscopes will be printed from day to day in the Boston Evening American, and a comparison given by Mrs. Thompson, who, among other successful prophecies, predicted in 1914 the ultimate entry of the United States into the World War.

The horoscope printed today is that of Joseph H. O'Neil.

Born Wednesday, March 23, 1853, in Fall River, Mass.

Here is another candidate who does not know the hour of his birth, but I notice he is born with the Sun in the sign of its exultation. As Aries is the first of all the signs and rules the head of the Grand Man, all such persons possess great executive ability, and are natural-born leaders of men, and make wonderful organizers.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Hughes, was a strong Aries type, but unfortunately did not know the hour of his birth. Also the late Pierpont Morgan and General Booth were born with the Sun in Aries, and they certainly have left their mark behind them.

It may also interest some of our scientific readers to know that the writer was born with the Sun exalted in Aries.

All such persons are natural reasoners, and they possess an active brain, with an inclination for scientific thought, research, philosophy and educational pursuits; they are strong, independent characters, very forceful and make good leaders of men.

NOT EASILY DECEIVED.

They have their own ideas of right and wrong, and the only way that they can be controlled is by an appeal to their reason.

If you watch these people carefully, you will see at once, that they possess genius, are witty, make good talkers, can be readily understood, have good perceptive powers, see through things quickly, and are not easily deceived about men and future events.

The Aries type can generally see how a thing looks from the very start, and have a very far vision of coming events, therefore they make good prophets; are fond of planning, show good judgment but no not like details, and become impatient of all work that seems to drag along, preferring that some one else should attend to the labor part of it. They are very inquisitive, and like to know the whys and wherefores of things.

USE UP BRAIN FORCE.

As these Aries people are so active mentally, they use up a great deal of their brain force, so their principal disease would be paralysis or affections of the eyes, while excitement or worry will give them a headache. They need plenty of sleep, and should stop thinking every day for one hour.

In spite of all of the above, and the fact that Dr. O'Neil does not know the hour of his birth, I do not consider his Horoscope a fortunate one for the people of Boston to live under, even though Jupiter the Greater Fortune is in good aspect to Mercury, the talking and writing planet.

This causes a man to possess very good judgment, gives him a steadfast and sober disposition which brings success, and will always help him out of trouble.

At the present time, I notice that Herschel has just left an affliction of Jupiter, and Mr. O'Neil's circulation is not very good, or he feels nervous, and this aspect will come up again in February, 1926, and he must be cautious.

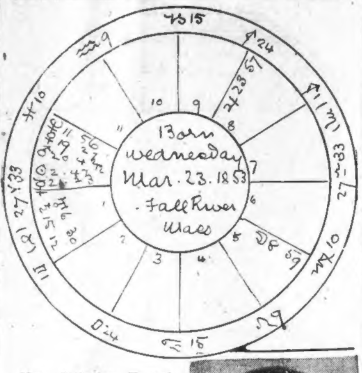
MIGHT BE MISLED.

Saturn is also making an opposition to his own place the end of October, 1925, and in March, 1926, and he could be quite upset about a gentleman or even two men, who might mislead him, but December, 1925, looks favorable. Still, we cannot promise him much and believe that when a man has reached the age of seventy-two, he should withdraw from politics, and begin to set his house in order, so as to leave "footprints on the sands of time."

We also notice that Mr. O'Neil has five planets out of nine, in what are called Common signs, and the late President Harding was also very strong in Common signs. The past five years Herschel has been afflicting these signs, and it is better to be contented with what we have, than reach out for something which might become a source of anxiety to us or injure our health.

We see no possible chance of the election of Mr. O'Neil next month, to the Mayor's Office.

O NEIL'S HOROSCOPE SHOWS GENIUS



Mrs. Catherine Howard Thompson, astrologer, says Joseph H. O'Neil's horoscope shows him a man of genius and great organizing power, a born leader of men, but she sees little prospect of his being elected Mayor of Boston.

EDITORS MAKE FINAL TEST OF AUTO LETTERS

By PACKARD BUICK ESSEX

The race for the three automobiles The Evening American is about to sell for 2 cents each enters its last lap.

Sometime today, the Editors of the Daily Advertiser, the Sunday Advertiser and this newspaper will sit down together for final consideration of the best three hundred letters, on "Why I Like the Boston Evening American."

Your chance, if your letter has survived thus far, are approximately one in one hundred. If you KNOW your letter must be one of the best three sent in, if you "feel it in your bones" that there cannot possibly be three better letters, you will not let the odds discourage you. Wait!

"TOP NOTCH" LETTERS.

The most difficult task of all is that which now confronts these judges. Before they have completed it they will all wish, as I wish most sincerely, that the number of automobiles to be disposed of for 2 cents apiece was three hundred instead of only three.

Many of these surviving letters are of "top-notch" variety. One of them is the work of a popular New England novelist, whose name and work are familiar to the great majority of you. The Army and the Navy are represented. There is one letter from the (Boston) City Hall. Practically all the letters written by clergymen have survived for further consideration.

AWAITING DECISION.

It was easy enough to say, one week ago, with all the help at hand, that the first examination of the letters would be completed within seven or eight days. It is not so easy, as all will readily understand, to say when the judges will be coming out of conference with the names of the three winners.

No time will be wasted. There are other entertainments to follow the letter competition. Everyone in authority in this office wishes to have the Automobile Competition disposed of immediaetly, if not sooner.

My own active part in the entertainment is ended. From now on, I shall be waiting with you for the editorial jurors to announce their decision. Meanwhile, I shall endeavor to keep every contestant informed of the progress of events.

ROXBURY BOY NOW PLAYING AT WILBUR

James Devine

James A. Devine, one of the players in "What Price Glory" at the Wilbur, is a native of Boston, having been born in Roxbury. As a young man his leaning toward the stage was strong and he prominently identified himself with the theatrical performances given by the Old Mission Church Association, now the St. Alphonsus Athletic Association, of Roxbury. Of that club, he was vice-president. Mr. Devine's first years on the professional stage were spent in appearances with traveling repertoire companies playing through New England.

VICE-PRES. DAWES VISITS C. A. HANNA AT MONTCLAIR

Newark, N. J., Oct. 12.—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes arrived in Newark today and under police escort drove to Montclair to spend the day at the Home of Charles A. Hanna. The two have been friends for many years.

The Vice-President will be escorted to Elizabeth tonight by Senator Edge, for an address.

S.O.S. MESSAGE IS THOUGHT A MOVIE 'PROP'

Block Cast Up by Sea Contains Call for Help for Schooner

Beach combers at Martha's Vineyard have in their possession the block which sends out a call for help and directs that Donald Murchie of Dedham be notifed that disaster has overtaken the schooner Norka in mid-ocean last August.

The block of wood was picked up on the north shore of Martha's Vineyard by Arthur Green of North Tisbury. The message read:

"Latitude 37.15 North; Longitude 59.03 West. We are adrift in an open boat with only a little food and water. This is last hope of five survivors of schooner Norka, eight month, second day. H. M., M. V. W., S. L. W., L. M. V., R. E. L. W. Notify Donald Murchie, Dedham, Mass."

The inscription was not written in pencil, but apparently scratched on by a nail or similar instrument. It was impossible to tell how long it had been in the water.

Guy Murchie, father of the supposed signer of the signal, explains the matter with the statement that he believes it is a practical joke, sent out by his son and a party of friends when they were taking movies last Summer along various sections of the Sound and Cape. He says that in his opinion the block might have been used as piece of "property," or else set adrift as a "false alarm."

FUTURE ROYAL GUARDS MUST BE SIX-FOOTERS

London, Oct. 12.—Only six-footers or better need apply hereafter for jobs as guards to His Majesty, King George.

The five regiments are the Goldstream Guards, Welsh Guards, Scots Guards, Irish Guards and the Grenadier Guards.

A word about our growth

THE steady growth in Thayer McNeil's business, the constant increase in new customers is more than a source of satisfaction to us. It is prosperity which means greater service to you.

Our record business of last spring indicated the growing appreciation of value in Thayer McNeil footwear. Boston and New England are demanding more Thayer McNeil shoes.

We planned for autumn accordingly. A hundred printed superlatives could not justly describe our stock of fall footwear. Your eye alone can tell you when you call.

K. OF C. COUNCIL TO INSTALL OFFICERS

Pere Marquette Holds Annual Ceremony Tonight in South Boston

The twenty-eighth annual installation of officers of Pere Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus, one of the largest councils in Greater Boston, will take place in the upper and lower halls of the Michael J. Perkins Post, American Legion building, Broadway near G. street, South Boston, tonight.

The installation will be under the direction of District Deputy Hugh J. McMackin, assisted by his staff. It is expected that there will be a large attendance.

Among the invited guests to the impressive ceremony are, Supreme Director William C. Prout, State Deputy Edmund G. Brandon, State Secretary John E. Swift, State Warden Charles Bartick, the Rev. Joseph F. Coppinger, I. P. P., State Chaplain of the K. of C., the Rev. Richard Burke, chaplain of the Council; Past District Deputies William H. Byrne, Joseph A. O'Neil and Edward Steptoe, Congressman James A. Gallivan and other prominent men will be present.

The officers to be installed for the ensuing year are:

Grand knight, Arthur J. O'Keefe; deputy grand knight, John J. Chapman; chancellor, John F. Kenneally; financial secretary, C. Frank Fellows; recording secretary, Daniel S. Santry; treasurer, James A. Barry; warden, Lloyd L. Chase; advocate, Michael J. O'Leary; inside guard, John J. Ryan; outside guard, William P. Scannell; trustee, Edward G. Anderson.

Arthur O'Keefe, grand knight-elect, is the youngest member of the order to be elected to that position.

Hundreds of friends of the Rev. Francis Xavier, S. J., will hail with delight his return to Boston from the Philippines. Fr. Byrne recently resigned the presidency of the Ateneo de Manila, a Jesuit college in the Philippines, and is now homeward bound to the city where he was reared and educated. He was relieved of the presidency of the institution at his own request, because of failing health. He is returning to Boston by easy stages and when last heard from he was in India.

Fr. Byrne left a host of friends in the Far East, especially in Manilla, where he was one of the most popular members of the American community. There will be many to welcome him home to Boston, however. He is a graduate of Boston College. At one time he was a feature writer on the old Boston Record.

Another Massachusetts boy succeeds Fr. Byrne to the presidency of the Ateneo, the most prominent of the Catholic universities of the Philippines, the Rev. James Collins of Peabody. Fr. Collins was formerly president of Holy Cross College, Worcester.

Associated with Fr. Collins are many Greater Boston boys, including the Rev. Richard O'Brien, S. J., up to a year ago a professor of classics at Boston College; the Rev. Thomas Shanahan, S. J., of Charlestown, and the Rev. Ferdinand Haverstraw, S. J., of Boston.

Other New England boys at the Ateneo are John H. Hutchinson of Waterbury, Ct., Walter L. Marr, James P. Moran, Thomas A. Shanahan, Edward J. Whalen, Charles J. Mahan, William J. Duffy, all of Boston; John N. McAleny of Woburn, and Thomas J. Smith of Needham.

Henry J. Barry, a well-known Boston attorney, has been installed as Grand Knight of Winthrop Council, Knights of Columbus by District Deputy Joseph R. Dean of East Boston. The other officers of the council installed are Frank J. Rogers, Deputy Grand Knight; Joseph P. Monahan, chancellor; Henry C. Collins, Warden; William Walpolem, Financial Secretary; John J. Saunry, Treasurer; Frank Masterson, Recording Secretary; George Ostman, Inside Guard; Joseph T. Kelly, Outside Guard; Daniel J. Dunphy, Advocate, and Andrew T. Kelly, Trustee.

JOKERS TRIED TO PUT HER FIANCE IN JAIL

'REVENGE' HOPE OF NEWLYWED AND BRIDE

Wilder Moore is on his honeymoon today with his pretty Edith, but every time the wheel beneath him clicks Wilder gets wilder and Edith speculates harder and harder on just which one of their friends will find crumbs in the guest chamber bed after they have settled down in their home.

Sometimes Edith puts the thought of nice, crisp crumbs aside in favor of salt in the guest's coffee or a big, juicy steak fried in yellow washing soap.

Meanwhile, Wilder gets wilder, for the identity of the jokester friends is a bit obscure, and he can't decide upon whom to take retribution.

JOKESTERS GET BUSY.

You see the jokesters nearly wrecked the wedding of Wilder and Edith in Hingham and almost left Edith waiting at the Baptist Church and Wilder waiting in a cell at Quincy police headquarters.

It was all very exciting while it lasted.

Wilder lives in Main street, Hingham, and was down on the books to marry Edith Love, assistant clerk of the Hingham District Court, at the Hingham Baptist Church.

A nuptial is not complete without posies for the bride, so Wilder and a chum, W. B. Southworth, of Garrison road, Hingham, journeyed in Wilder's car to a Quincy florist, where they picked out the nicest flowers you ever saw.

THE POLICE GET BUSY.

Then they stepped out of the shop and into the bad eye of a big policeman.

"On the car, eh! Well they're not on the car."

But then the cop made it two up when he asked the frustrated bridegroom-maybe-or-maybe-not-to-be—according to his versatility in squirming out of a difficult situation—for his license and registration. Wilder reached for the hiding place—but they were gone.

"Oh ho!" said the cop significantly.

SETS THEM STRAIGHT.

And so they arrived at police headquarters, with clouds swirling all about and a fluttering, expectant bride waiting for the fateful hour and a cell waiting for Wilder.

All was straightened out, however, at police headquarters, when a thoughtful sergeant, who has seen a bit of romance himself come out of black situations, telephoned to here and there and squared things. Joking friends had removed the license plates.

The marriage came off on schedule and the couple departed on the honeymoon.

But oh, if Wilder could only find out who did it—and Edith has black plans, too.

LEGION STANDS WITH A. F. OF L., SAYS BERRY

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—George L. Berry, president of the Printing Pressmen's Union, who represented the American Federation of Labor at the recent convention of the American Legion at Omaha, today brought to the annual convention of the federation the greetings of the legionnaires.

He said that the legion and organized labor had a sympathetic community of interest in many matters, such as Americanism, child labor and opposition to communism. The policy of friendship and cordiality, adopted by past commanders of the legion toward labor will be continued by Commander McQuigg, Major Berry said.

The convention today voted to make no specific recommendation at present in regard to a memorial to Samuel Gompers. One of the proposals of a special committee favored the erection of a monument at Washington near the A. F. of L Building.

The delegates stood in silence for one minute as a tribute to Fred Bramley, secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, whose death occurred Saturday.

A number of recommendations made by the executive council, in its recently published report, were adopted without debate. Among these were proposals for a more complete collection of trade union statistics and a reiteration of the stand favoring plans for employers' insurance.

The convention favored caution in cases where unions contemplate labor banking undertakings. "It is necessary to have more than good will," a report said, and the employment of experts in banking was advocated.

NEW ENGLAND VETS' PLAN IS UPHELD

By FRANCIS J. GOOD,
State Commander American Legion

Omaha, Neb., Oct 12.—It was particularly gratifying to the Legionnaires of New England to find the Legion clinging steadfastly to its principle of international co-operation without, however, a surrender of our Sovereignty.

While our conviction was strong that peace throughout the world was desirable, the independence of our country should never be yielded or risked on a plan which practice might prove was but an idealistic theory.

To those who would suggest the presence always of this possibility we of the legion of New England feel strongly that this possibility may be narrowed to the irreducible minimum if we forego definite action until time for study and sober consideration is given.

AVOIDS LEAGUE PITFALL.

We of the legion regarded the original resolution presented to our convention with much concern because incorporated therein was the commitment to a court which functioned as an agency of the League of Nations from which body an American public had already withheld it's approval.

The legion has expressed itself in sympathy with a court of international justice and we, both as legionaires and Americans, will ever insist that such a court be representative of the will of America and likewise consistent with the entire program for American security and world peace.

Included in this program and in representing doubtlessly America's most powerful contribution toward world peace and unquestionably its strongest asset for national security is the maintenance of an edequate army, navy and air force for internal and external national defence.

FOR SINGLE CONTROL.

The Legion views with favor the proposal to reorganize our national defense under one cabinet officer with sub-divisions of equal importance for the land, sea and air forces. This promises single control over our armed forces and therefore the elimination of branch jealousies; peculiar service pride, harmful at times to kindred arms of the service; and, of the greatest importance, presents the opportunity for happy co-ordination so necessary and effective in time of emergency.

This plan will inevitably result also, in the elimination of possible "arm" surplasage for pride's sake, into not alone an efficient but an economic defense organization.

SOLUTION IMPERATIVE.

While the air force problem is comparatively novel it must be solved at the earliest possible time, for undeniably America, with its tremendous sea coast, its peculiarly situated possessions and its own broad area, mus always maintain efficiently an air force superior to any other in the world.

The importance of the problems mentioned and the knowledge that the air services of the various arms of the service are really engaged in a common enterprise leads us to view with much favor the suggestion for a unified air service.

ALERT TO "NICE WORDS."

Alert to the pitfalls and hidden springs of reports couched in nice language they succeeded in bringing about a careful and impartial consideration of the problem of world peace, all of which resulted happily in the adoption of a resolution giving expression of adherance to a court of international justice without yielding, however, the sovereignty of America.

They also view with pleasure the result of their effort for national defense, the only strong guarantee the Americans have for a lasting peace.

Why?

WHY DO THEY CALL THEM "CANOES"?

When the moon shines sweetly on the waters of the Charles River, who cares why they call the magic boats canoes?

Some readers, however, are practical to the nth degree. They care not about the silver sheen on the rippling waters or the music of the paddle, as it cuts the water in powerful strokes. Their curiosity is in derivation of the word and the custom. Hence, hark!

When Columbus first sailed into the Western world he found the natives of the West Indies paddling about in little boats they called by the Carib name of "canaoa." Very, very few words have ever been adopted into another language without changing the spelling, and so it was with the Carib "canaoa." In Spanish, it became "Canao," and in the harsher English "canow," "canowe" and then "canoe."

As late as Captain John Smith's time the word was used in its old form. The wooer and winner of Pocahontas, Indian maid of historical significance, wrote in some of his descriptions of the new world of the boats constructed of birch bark or skins as "canowes."

CHINESE WIFE HAS ENROLLED AT TECH

She's Trying to Get on "Equal Rights" Road With Her Husband

Far to the West, across the rolling sweep of prairie and peaks of the Rockies—over the surging swell of the Pacific—in the land of the lotus and the poppy, a lot of honorable ancestors stirred uneasily in their graves today.

Pretty little Lee Li Fu has registered for electrical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and has begun a long journey on the road that will place the little Chinese lady on equal footing with her husband.

Feminine equality with the masculine in old China was a horrible thought by Miss Lee Li Fu—who isn't "Miss" at all but Mrs. Kuan Tung—is a modern China lady and the honorable ancestors, she shrugs, can go chase themselves.

Buried away in a list of 190 names the name Miss Lee Li Fu attracted little attention until the pretty girl-wife herself appeared. Then Tech became all attention.

It came out that her husband, Kuan Tung, was recently graduated from Tech with a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering, and just before the Cambridge institution reopened he sent to China for Lee, his wife.

Already the possessor of a bachelor of science degree from the National Technical School of China, Pretty Lee came to America unaccompanied from the city of her birth, Peking.

Tung, proud as proud can be over [illegible] reception to Lee, settled down at No. 21 Lee street, Cambridge, with her, there to make a home until she have completed her elected course, declared by students to be "the toughest on the list," at Tech.

But Lee despite the fact that her English speech is a bit smaltered is confident she can make the grade. Another co-ed has taken her up and is teaching her plainspoken English. Already she can write it well, but the tongue twisters do just that in her speech.

Pekin Belle

Mrs. Kuan Tung, Chinese society girl, wants to do all her husband does, so she is taking the stiffest engineering course at Tech just because he did.

CHICAGO HAS PASSED 3 MILLION MARK

Washington, Oct. 12 (I.N.S.). New census figures for a large number of American cities based on calculations of the rate of increase since 1920 were made public today by the Department of Commerce.

Chicago has passed the 3,000,000 mark, there being 2,995,239 in the city proper, with 22,117 in Chicago Heights, making the grand total 3,007,356.

Philadelphia ranks as the third city with more than 2,000,000.

BRUCE ADVISES COUPLE TO CUT OUT 'IN-LAWS'

Warns Against Bridal Couples Going Back to Either Old Home to Live

The husband-and-wife situation was given a leaf from a birdie's notebook by Judge Charles M. Bruce of the Malden Court, the in-laws thereby being thrown for a total loss.

It came about through the snarl that has cluttered the union of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham L. Cushner of Revere for many days now gone on the calendar.

But if Mr. and Mrs. Cushner will take a leaf from Nature's notebook and stay away from the in-laws, the Judge declared, everything will not only be well, but life will purl along like a sylvan brook and hum like a pretty song.

Five months ago the Cushners were married, the lady testified, and they set up housekeeping at No. 2 Grape street, Malden.

After a short time, however, Abraham took her to live with his parents and trouble began. The bride avers that her ma and pa-in-law were "mean" and threatened to put her in an asylum.

Cushner, a war veteran, has heart trouble, the bride testified, and his parents were all for him and none for her.

For only a few months now Judge Bruce has been a blushing bridegroom himself, and romance and the solving of marital tangles is his pet hobby or hobbies.

"This court will never ask a wife to go to live with her husband's folks, nor a husband to live with his wife's people," he announced.

"Young birds never return to their nests to roost. Human beings can profit by a leaf from Nature's notebook. When a young man marries, he must expect to start a home of his own and ought to be prepared to do so."

8 PICKED IN ELIMINATION CONTEST

John Murray Anderson Judge for Evening American Lauds Entrants' Charms

Greater Boston's type of beautiful girls was accorded superlative praise from the lips of a master when John Murray Anderson, famed producer of the Greenwich Village Follies, lauded the charms of the entrants in the Boston Evening American Beauty Contest in the first elimination test at the New Metropolitan Theatre at Tremont and Hollis streets.

"Your Boston girls are real beauties," said Anderson as he surveyed the entire group of girls, before making his selection.

"These young ladies are excellent types and it is going to be a very difficult task to choose one of them as the best."

After a long period of careful inspection of the candidates in one of the magnificent lounge rooms of the new theatre, and in the presence of nearly as many friends of the candidates as there were candidates themselves, Mr. Anderson singled out eight girls.

WILL WIN $500 PRIZE.

From these eight one will later be chosen as the winner of the $500 prize offered by the Boston Evening American, and in addition this winner will be named Directorette of the New Metropolitan Theatre.

Dressed in a costume designed by a famous costumer, she will appear daily in the lobby of the theatre where patrons may see her and where she will be one of the charms of Boston's newest motion picture palace. Her first appearance will be at the opening, next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Among the entrants were winners of prizes in many other beauty contests held in New England during the last few years.

Mr. Anderson gave careful attention to the grace displayed by the girls as they walked in a circle before him and he was pleased so much by the qualities of many of the candidates that he invited all who could dance to appear at the theatre this week to try out and rehearse for the ballet group he is forming as one of the attractions in store for new Metropolitan Theatre patrons.

SURPRISE TO GIRLS.

This invitation came as a pleasant surprise to the girls, for it meant that not only was one to be selected for the post of directorette, but that several more are to be picked as members of the permanent staff which will take part in some of the numbers to be interspersed between feature motion pictures in the weekly programs of the theatre.

Miss Nina Wolffe, one of the eight selected, is the girl who went to Atlantic City this year as "Miss Boston," having been chosen at a contest last Summer at Nantasket. She is a black-haired, blue-eyed girl, whose sweet face and finely-chiseled features caught Mr. Anderson's expert eye.

Miss Mildred Yore of Jamaica Plain, another who was selected, is taking part in a beauty contest for the first time. She has golden-brown hair and blue eyes, very graceful carriage and a most charming smile.

Miss Pauline Gaulin, who was chosen as "Miss New England" in a recent beauty contest, is an example of dignified beauty. Miss Ethel Cusher, another of the eight who survived the elimination test, was named "Miss New England" at Nantasket last Summer, "Miss Revere" in another test, and received a prize in the last beauty contest conducted by the Boston Evening American.

WAS "MISS CAPE COD."

Miss Ruth Kennedy was "Miss Cape Cod" last Summer. Miss Dolores Newman of Arlington was with Earl Carroll's shows for two years, is a trained ballet dancer and is almost sure to be in the Metropolitan Theatre ballet, even if she does not win the major prize.

Miss Ruth Sennott won fourth place in the Nantasket contest of this year.

Before the final selection is made the girls will be viewed in costume so that Mr. Anderson can decide which is going to make the most charming appearance in the stunning Directorette costume which is being fashioned.

GERMANY WILL ENTER LEAGUE

Locarno, Switzerland, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Agreement was practically reached today on the conditions of Germany's entrance into the League of Nations, and the delegates to the Security Conference now hopefully predict the success of the conference.

The Allies have produced a solution of the German League membership question which Chancellor Luthern and Foreign Minister Stresemann believe will satisfy German public opinion and at the same time safeguard the friendly relations of the Reich with Russia.

One big issue remains unsettled—France's guarantee for Poland. As they emerged from their meeting the delegates said the text of the agreement concerning Germany and the League would not be announced until there was complete agreement on all other points, as the conference sought to avoid world-wide comment which might imperil their final labors.

CHINA MILL MEN STRIKE PROTESTING RIOT INQUIRY

Shanghai, Oct. 12.—Ten thousand Chinese cotton mill workers struck today as a protest against the judicial inquiry being conducted by the powers into the cause of the Shanghai riots several months ago. Three of the mills affected are owned by British and one by Chinese.

The plan of the Chinese was for a one-day strike to affect the entire industrial area, but workers in only

LYNN WOMAN FATALLY HURT IN AUTO WRECK

York, Pa., Oct. 12. — Mrs. Ralph Williams, 28, of Lynn, Mass., was fatally injured on the Susquehanna Trail near here, when a motor truck went over an embankment. She died in York Hospital two hours after the accident.

Her husband and her son, Warren, and John Wallace of Shamokin, Penn., driver of the truck, were seriously injured in the spill.

WOMAN FREED IN "POISON PEN" PLOT ON RICH MAN

Joplin, Mo., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A charge of sending a poison pen letter to Arthur S. Marks, New York millionaire, filed recently against Mrs. Mary F. Adams, wife of a Joplin news agency owner, was dismissed today at the request of the government. Mrs. Adams is a sister of Mrs. Lydia Dornblaser, singer, who faces a charge in connection with the alleged sending of the letter to Marks. The dismissal was asked after Mrs. Adams had been subpoenaed to appear as a witness

CANADIAN HOTEL BURNS, WITH $100,000 LOSS

Montreal, Oct. 12 (I.N.S.).—Clarendon Hotel at St. Anne De Bellevue, twenty miles from this city and one of the best known resorts on the island, was destroyed by fire early today with a loss estimated at $100,000.

G. A. Daoust, proprietor of the hotel, rescued Eddie Channeler, 14, a paralytic, who was screaming for help in bed on the second floor.

MANOVICH WITHDRAWS TO HELP MRS. BARRON

Hyman Manovich of Dorchester, vice-president of the Teamsters' Union, delegate to the Central Labor Union and a candidate for Boston School Committee, issued a statement withdrawing from the School Board contest and announcing his support of Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron for a position on that board. Mr. Manovich is a war veteran and active in Legion affairs in Dorchester.

BEDFORD FIRE THREATENS FACTORIES

B. & M. Passenger Cars Are Burned as Factory District Is Threatened

Fire destroyed the Arabian Manufacturing Company plant on Loomis street in Bedford today, threatened a cluster of smaller factory buildings in the vicinity, and damaged two passenger cars on siding on the B. & M. tracks nearby.

The Bedford Fire Department was assisted by firemen and apparatus from Lexington. The damage will be $65,000, it is estimated.

The building, which is a two-story frame structure, was unoccupied today. The fire, when first seen, was in the middle of the building, over the boilers.

On the first floor were an Atlantic & Pacific Tea Store and the A. J. Campbell Hardwarde Store.

Fanned by a high wind, the flames leaped freakishly in all directions, and constantly menaced other plants which give employment to hundreds.

The passenger cars, moored on the siding, were dragged away by a locomotive as soon as the two already ablaze had been cut out.

"Just Rub It On"

Mothers who have precious little lives in their keeping realize the danger to delicate stomachs of so much dosing.

That is why so many millions of mothers now depend entirely upon Vicks for croup and children's colds.

There is nothing to swallow—you just rub Vicks over throat and chest at bedtime and cover with a warm flannel, leaving the bedclothes loose about the neck so that the arising vapors may be freely inhaled. The child is usually better next morning.

Those Winning Smiles

That mean so much . . . commercially, socially, are gained this new way with gleaming, white teeth

Don't believe your teeth are "naturally" dull. Just accept this 10-day test. See how dazzling white teeth and healthy gums come when film coats go.

HERE is a new and radically different way in tooth care. A way that quickly restores "off-color" teeth to attractive whiteness and that leading dentists of the world are urging.

In a few days it will work a transformation in your mouth.

Your teeth will be clear and gleaming; your gums firm and of healthy color. Just mail the coupon. A 10-day supply will be sent you.

FILM . . . it hides pretty teeth, and imperils gums

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it—a slippery, viscous coating.

The film absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. And that is why your teeth look "off-color" and dingy.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack and your teeth open to decay. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea.

Mere brushing won't do

Ordinary dentifrices and cleansing won't fight film sucessfully. Feel for it now with your tongue. Note how your present cleansing method is failing in its duty.

Now new methods are being used. A dentifrice called Pepsodent—different in formula, action and effect from any other known.

Largely on dental advice the world has turned to this method.

It removes that film. And Firms the Gums.

It accomplishes two important things at once: Removes that film, then firms the gums.

A few days' use will prove its power beyond all doubt.

THEIR BACKS TO WALL, PIRATES' COURAGE LOW

TODAY'S IS CRUCIAL CONTEST

Only Breaks Can Keep Dispirited Pittsburghers in the Series

And once aboard the lugger ——!

The end of the Series, with Washington victor at four games to one—or another breath of life with Pittsburgh again in the running with two games to three—loomed only a few innigs in the offing as the first Pirate arrayed his tootsies along the edge of the plate.

For three fatal contests this plate had been only a soup plate for Pittsburgh, but a golden, glittering thing for the boys from Washington.

Coveleskie was in the pitcher's box for the Senators and Aldridge was all warmed up for iPttsburgh. A little judicious money at 4 to 5 was down on the pirates to win the fifth battle and send the Series back to Pittsburgh.

The sky was cloudy and an official forecast said there might be showers during the afternoon.

The only uncertainty revolved around the ability, or lack of it, on the part of Stanley Coveleskie to moist-ball the Pirates silly for nine innings. He attempted the business in Pittsburgh some days ago and lost the only game of the series for Washington when Cuyler smote a homer into the stands in the eighth inning.

Most of the dear old experts, in fact, looked for the series to end this afternoon, a circumstance which prompted many to make railroad reservations for home.

The lure of baseball tugged at Mr. Coolidge today. Although he had not intended to go to the game he made up his mind to attend. Mrs. Coolidge had planned to go regardless of the action of the President.

Pirates Appear Out, Except for Breaks

By NICK FLATLEY.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—The Pirates's backs are against the wall, but they seem to be in no fighting mood today. Depressed by the shutout defeat adminisered by Walter Johnson they are in no mood to take the chances that the Senators, inspired by three-game-to-one lead, are likely to do and only a succession of breaks will enable the National League champions to keep the Series "in."

The fact they have once beaten Stanley Coveleskie, pitching selection of the Senators for the fifth game of the Series, seemingly, has not stiffened the Pirates' backbone nor are they cheered mightily by the reason that they are fielding behind "Vic" Aldrich, sole conqueror of the Senators, in the last ditch stand.

the motions in the Sunday pastime. the motions in the Sunday pastime. Like so many wooden soldiers, they marched right up, and marched right back again.

Walter Johnson blanked them without even trying a lot. The National Leaguers were licked as soon as the lumbering Potomac peril touched from the dugout. Their courage was gone, their hope was blasted, and they just did the old mechanical stuff. They looked for all the world like a tail-end team finishing out the schedule.

We have never seen, in quite a few years, a more total and disastrous collapse. Excepting Carey, Traynor and Wright, the Pirates are moving stodgily in a daze, parading themselves into oblivion with the drear stolidity of shock troops, defeated and going to death.

The Pirates have been playing dumb baseball. They haven't grasped opportunity when it appeared. They won one game when luck deserted the Senators. Luck has been with them since, but they don't seem to know it. They have the natural class, and it may show. But it's one of those 100 to 1 shots.

For instance, Johnson, trying to stretch a base hit into a double in the third, pulled a Charley horse. He limped back to the bench, after he was tagged out. He couldn't field bunts, nor cover first. He couldn't even bear down to put his stuff on a curve ball. Time after time he "shook off" Ruel. That, in baseball parlance, means the pitcher doesn't want to throw what the catcher calls for.

Muddy was asking for curves, and Walter couldn't throw them. The Pirates must have known this. Three Washington pitchers were warming up in the bull pen.

They were ready, from the fourth inning on. But the Pirates didn't bunt. They have the speed for that sort of game. They had a weak third base man on the job. Myer, a rookie, gummed up the first two balls hit his way. Johnson had been ordered not to try to cover first. The smart Mister Carey dragged a bunt to Judge and beat it, because Stanley Harris couldn't get to the base for the put out.

May Turn the Tide

Here's "Vic" Aldridge, ace of the Pirate pitching staff, who has been selected to save the day for the Buccs. Vic beat the Senators once and he knows of no good reason why he can't do it again. If Vic stumbles the Pirates chances of becoming the world baseball champions will fade deep into the mist of the twilight, so its entirely up to Mister Aldridge.

98-YARD RUN IS FEATURE OF NEEDHAM WIN

Needham High defeated Dedham in their annual game at Dedham High Field by a score of 13 to 0 before a crowd of 5,000.

Smith, substituting for Marcellis at left end, recovered a fumble on Dedham's two-yard line and ran ninety-eight yards for the first touchdown in the last minute of play in the first quarter.

The second score came in the last quarter after Needham rushed the ball forty-five yards in straight line plays. Matthies carried the ball across.

Penn-Yale Hour Advanced

New Haven, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The football game between Yale and Pennsylvaania in the bowl next Saturday will be started at 2:30 p. m. instead of 3 p. m. as previously announced and which time is printed on the tickets. Penn's football management today agreed to the change in time. Last Spring, when the date was made, Pennsylvania wanted the starting time to be 3 p. m., so as to allow Philadelphia and other folks from that section ample time to reach New Haven. Yale men pointed out that the late start might mean a period of play in semi-darkness. Penn was ready to risk it, however.

Orioles Capture Junior Title

Baltimore, Oct. 12.—Baltimore captured the junior World's Series title. The Orioles defeated Louisville of the American Association, 5 to 2, in the eighth game.

Baltimore won five contests against Louisville's three.

Earnshaw, on the mound for the Orioles, was effective in the pinches.

Baltimore got to DeBerry, the Colonels' hurler, who had tamed them effectively earlier in the series, and drove him from the box in the fourth inning.

CAREY SURE PIRATES WILL WIN 3 IN ROW

By MAX CAREY,
Written Expressly for Universal Service.

Washington, Oct. 12.—The earliest judgment of Bill McKechnie was vindicated yesterday afternoon—in a way that was rather saddening for us.

Bill had the pre-series idea that those Senators, with their big collection of right handed hitters, might go on a clubbing rampage if he sent one of our southpaws against them. But Bill took the chance that he might be wrong in that initial reasoning. But he wasn't.

He sent Emil Yde to the mound for us in this fourth battle—and it wasn't very long before Emil was back in the clubhouse [illegible] off.

The Senators spent two innings studying the left handed offerings of Emil. And then things began to happen. When all the excitement had died down among those Washington rooters, it was discovered that Washington had scored four runs, and four hits, including two four basers, off Yde.

There went the ball game.

Without attempting to detract anything from Washington's victory, I cannot but feel that they had plenty of luck in that third inning. Without it they would not have done any scoring at all.

Rice hit a zipper at Moore who fielded it perfectly but fell trying to make the throw. One man was out at the time. Stanley Harris hit to Grantham who threw to Wright. The ball hit Wright on the wrist—and S. Harris, who otherwise would have been out, was safe.

There you are—two men on bases, due to something akin to flukes. Had they been retired, the side would have been out—and scoreless. But they were on the bases That gave Goslin and Joe Harris their chances to crack out the homers that won the game for Washington.

Johnson's pitching again was a superb exhibition. But Walter wasn't as much of a puzzle as the first time he went up against us. It was only the wonderful defense of the Senators that, at times, reached the superlative, that turned us back.

Things don't look so awfully rosy for us just now, with the count 3 to 1 against us. That winning three games to achieve is a tough job, but we've faced jobs as tough as that before—and gone on to ultimate victory.

RUEL EXPECTS SERIES WILL END TODAY

By HAROLD (MUDDY) RUEL,
Catcher for Senators.
Written Expressly for Universal Service
(Copyright, 1925, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Washington, Oct. 12.—Old Kid Optimism has come to join our ranks and tells us that the series ends right here in Washington this afternoon.

Three victories in the bag for us—only one more needed to cinch another world's championship. And for that effort we have Stanley Coveleskie primed and ready—and really anxious to secure revenge for his defeat in the second tussle.

The story of the fourth game is just a story of a wonderful pitcher pitching in peerless fashion—and of our boys cracking the ball when just such an accomplishment meant victory for us.

Those Pirates chased a southpaw at us. It didn't take long to convince them that if there's anything that we really do like is left handed pitching.

Took us about two sessions to find out what this Emil Yde had. And then—well, we bumped Emil for two homers, two singles and four nice runs. They served Morrison to us after Yde went away and his right handed shoots weren't so easy to spank. But it didn't make much difference for the four safeties we made off Yde were enough to win three ball games, with Walter Johnson pitching the kind of ball he flashed again yesterday.

The defensive work of Stanley Harris was beautiful. He roamed that second station with the speed of an antelope. His spectacular play cut off two Pirate rallies.

Johnson and Harris on defense for us—and Joe Harris and Goslin on offense—were the biggest factors in the victory.

Pittsburgh is an all right town—but our boys prefer Washington. So we've decided that we won't go back to the "Smoky City," but will stay right at home by ending the series this afternoon.

Griffith Denies All Trade Rumors

Mr. Clark Griffith, the old "silver squirrel" of by-gone baseball years, and now president of the Washington club, is said to have denied that "Goose" Goslin and Roger Peckinpaugh have been sold or traded or given away to the Boston Red Sox, and the local baseball citizenry hope for the time being that the denial, as far as it concerns "Goose" is true.

As in the first game of the world's series, Johnson again dominated the situation. He is as completely master of this series as was the great Christy Mathewson in 1905, when he shut out the Philadelphia Athletics in three games.

'RED' CHAPMAN TAKES PLACE OF DUNDEE

Red Chapman, Dorchester featherweight, left for New York this morning to substitute for Johnny Dundee against Babe Herman at the boxing show at the Polo Grounds this afternoon.

The match was not closed until 4:30 a. m. Manager Charley Cardio then got into communication with Chapman who left for New York at 8 a. m.

Arrangements have been made for an auto to meet Chapman at the Grand Central Station, New York, at 2 p. m. and rush him to the Polo Grounds where he is scheduled to enter the ring with Herman at 3:30 p. m.

Chapman is in fair condition as he was training last week to box Terry Martin at Providence on Friday night. This bout was postponed until next Friday night at the last minute.

White Sox Win Over Cubs, 7-2

Chicago, Oct. 12. (AP).—Ted Blankenship, the Texas cowboy, who battled Grover Alexander, the veteran Cub's ace, to a 19-inning, two-to-two draw, in the first game of the series, came back and put his club in the running by defeating the Cubs, 7 to 2, after the Nationals had won two straight. The series now stands two games for the Cubs and one for the White Sox.

Today's game is the last in which the players share in the receipts. From the pooled receipts the winners will take 60 per cent and the losers 40.

Attendance 13,091.
Receipts $12,912.14.
Commissioner's share $1,936.82.
Players' pool $6,585.19.
Each club's share $4,390.13.

The players' pool for the four games amounts to $24,350.45. The winners' share will be $14,610.27 and the losers' $9,740.18.

TWO OF 'FOUR HORSEMEN' STAR AS WATERBURY WINS

Waterbury, Oct. 12. (A.P.)—With "Sleepy" Jim Crowley, famous horseman of the 1924 Notre Dame football team and assistant coach of the University of Georgia eleven, in the backfield, the Waterbury Blues scored a 34-to-0 victory over the All-Adams team of North Adams, Mass., here.

Crowley, playing the first professional football game of his career scored three touchdowns and kicked a goal after touchdown. He made a 60-yard run for one of the touchdowns and another was scored on a 35-yard pass from Harry Stuhldreher, quaorterback of the Blues and a team-mate of Crowley last season.

NORDBERG ON THE HARVARD VARSITY

Johnnie Nordberg, former Boston Latin star, and three-letter man in freshman sports at Cambridge last year, has been promoted to the Crimson varsity as a third team halfback.

Nordberg did not report for practice until a week ago, and in that time has won his way into a Crimson jersey. He has been showing up very well in recent sessions.

The Harvard squad spent the morning working out a defence for the forward passes, which it is expected Holy Cross will use next Saturday.

At that time it will be possible to put forward the full varsity strength, as all the prominent casualties appeared on the field today. Jack Maher, veteran of two years' standing, Chauncey, one of the squad's best kickers, and Bob Malick, third string halfback, all went through a workout.

Leo Daley, probably the best of the Crimson linemen, who was injured in the Rensselaer game, also reported in uniform, although his only workout was a run around the field. Clem Coady, fullback, hurt in the Middlebury walkaway, is said to be back in form again.

Team A lined up in the same order as it did Saturday against Middlebury, as did the Team B line. The latter's backfield was as follows: Stafford, quarter; Chauncey, Howe and Zarakov.

This is "HUNCH"
—one of the most famous characters in advertising history. Recognized all over the world as the Prince Albert man. You can find his prototype in any town. He's up on politics, baseball and horses, and has the real low-down on pipe tobacco. Name's "HUNCH."

Play this hunch and you can't lose

GET out that little old jimmy-pipe. Fill the bowl to the brim with Prince Albert and light up! Will you like it? Man, man! Does a kid like ice cream? Can a bullfrog dive? You bet you will like it, like you never liked anything before.

Because, what a man's smoke-appetite hankers for, Prince Albert's got nothing else except! Yes, sir, you can bet your life on that. You'll fire-up right after breakfast and stay with it till the little blue stars wig-wag "Good night."

Never was a pipe tobacco like good old P. A. Cool and sweet and soothing, the smoke zooms up the stem, bowling over pet peeves and filling your system with a new kind of joy. And how kind it is to your tongue and throat. That's because the Prince Albert process cuts out bite and parch ab-so-lute-ly!

So, slip into top-speed and head for the nearest store where they hand out jimmy-pipe joy in tidy red tins. If you haven't got a jimmy-pipe, get one now. Then borrow a match and you're all set for a smoke experience!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT
—no other tobacco is like it!

OPEN CLASSES.

112 and 126 pounds and heavyweight division.

By JACK CONWAY.

AMATEUR mitt stars will hold the stage tonight when the Boston Lodge of Elks stages an inter-city show between Boston and New York at the Arena tonight.

There will be inter-city bouts at 126, 135 and 147 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

Jack Conway

There will also be open classes at 112 and 126 pounds and in the heavyweight class.

The proceeds of the show will go to swell the charity fund of the Elks. With the prices of tickets 50 cents, 75 cents and $1, a capacity crowd is expected. The money raised will go to purchase Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners for the poor of Greater Boston.

Despite the expense of tonight's show, Exalted Ruler Daniel Kane refused to increase the price of tickets. He figures that the added expense will be cared for by an increased attendance.

IT was only after the most mature deliberation that the committee finally made its choice of the lads who will uphold the standards of the Hub. The New York team is one of the strongest that ever came out of Gotham, every member being of championship timber, and it was a delicate task, therefore, to pick the local boys to oppose them. It was finally settled that Jack McCarron of Somerville and Eddie Sullivan of East Weymouth, a consistent performer at the Elks' shows, will be the Boston representatives against Jack Donohue of the Holy Name Club, Metropolitan champion, and Joe Morello of the Newark Recreation Club in the 126-pound class.

The New Yorkers have nominated Tommy Lawn of the Kennedy's Boys Club, runner-up in the National senior championships last Spring, National junior champion and Panama title-holder, and Leo Heinen of the Ascension Parish House in the lightweight class. Opposed to them will be Tommy Daley of Lynn and Jack Doyle of East Boston.

A pair of sterling welterweights will defend Boston's prestige in the welterweight class. Eddie Adonis of the Boston Y. M. C. A., New England champion, and winner of the international class last Winter, will be paired with Frankie Flynn of Charlestown as the local choices. Although neither has participated in open competition this Autumn, both are in prime fettle and primed to meet Joe Littman, star of the 92d st. Y. M. H. A., and his club-mate, Sam Kurland.

THE greatest expectancy always surrounds the heavyweight competition and for tonight's tournament a particularly strong field is entered. Al Sheridan of the Holy Name Club, the pick of the New York team, is champion of the Metropolitan A. A. A. U., and he will be accompanied by a team-mate that nearly measures up to his standard. But strong as are the invaders, the local twain loom up just as formidable. Joe Monte of Brockton, New England heavyweight champion, and Babe Wilson of Charlestown are scheduled to meet the Gotham pair.

Monte's ability is unquestioned, and neither is Wilson's since he recently defeated Monte. The respective cohorts of Monte and Wilson are "rooting" for each to eliminate his Metropolitan rival in order that they may once more come together in the final bout.

PLAYING SECRETS OF Famous Football Stars

No. 4—Told by HARRY WILSON, Halfback—West Point

To ED. THORP, Famous Player, Coach and Referee

AS a halfback at Penn State, Harry Wilson won All-American honors for unusual ability to carry the ball. After watching Wilson going through fields for long gains, spectators believe he has great speed. This is not so. Wilson possesses only average backfield speed, but he has developed the art of running to a high state of efficiency.

HIP SWING
HIP SWING

Wilson's most valuable asset is a peculiar running style. He constantly sways his body and will pull away with a quick motion of the hips, just when a tackler is sure he has his man. Weighing about 170 pounds, Wilson has the necessary strength to get loose, even when opposing hands are clutching him. Wilson will dodge when it is the best thing to do, and will also employ a strong stiff arm, but his most effective weapon is his body sway.

While representing West Point last season, Wilson was not stopped squarely in front in any game. He was either pulled down from the side or in the rear. It is the opinion of the Cadet coaches that once over the line of scrimmage, Wilson cannot be stopped without a substantial gain.

Wilson is also a keen mental player. He has an athletic mind and seems to know instinctively just what to do. An instance of Wilson's ability to think quickly was witnessed in the Yale-Army game at New Haven last year. With the Bulldog leading, the Cadets finally unlimbered a drive that steadily carried the ball close to Yale's goal line, where the Blue defence suddenly became a stonewall.

When other scoring plays failed, the ball was passed to Wilson, who, starting on an off-tackle play, discovered an opening inside guard, like a flash changed direction and shot through the hole over the goal line for the touchdown that enabled West Point to tie the Elis.

LEHIGH WILL SOON HAVE NEW STADIUM

Bethlehem, Pa., Oct. 12—Lehigh University is to have within the near future a foobal stadium to seat in the neighborhood of 50,000 people. The present stadium on Taylor Field will seat about 15,000 and in order to provide for the future athletic expansion at Lehigh, the board of trustees today purchased from the Bethlehem Steel Company its Schwab Athletic Field. The value of this steel athletic plant is between $250,000 and $500,000.

The new stadium will be located about a mile away from the university campus. The field is now used by the Bethlehem soccer team. It consists of many acres of land which have been developed into one of the finest industrial plants in the country.

BOXING PROFITABLE FOR NEW JERSEY

Trenton, Oct. 12.—For the three months ending Sept. 30 last the New Jersey Athletic Commission turned over to the State a net profit of $17,416.16, according to a report submitted to State Comptroller Bugbee, by Allan Trimble, secretary to the Boxing Commission. Receipts of the Commission amounted to $21,909, made up almost entirely of State taxes, and there were expenditures of $5540 for salaries and traveling expenses.

WILSON SCORES EASY VICTORY OVER FELTONS

The Wilson Catholic Club defeated the Felton A. C. at Rogers Park, Brighton, 31 to 0. Dan Cuwell of the Wilsons took the ball over for two of the three scores and made the extra point on all three occasions.

DIXIES AND MERCERS IN GRIDIRON DUEL

The Dixie A. C. of South Boston and the Mercer A. A. also of South Boston will play a Columbus Park today at 2:30. The Dixie gridsters have yet to be scored on. Captain Joe Edwood boasts a team that never had their goal crossed in their many games last season.

35,000 TICKETS SOLD FOR YALE-PENN GAME

Philadelphia, October 12.—The greatest exodus of football fans ever to leave this city will follow the University of Pennsylvania football team to New Haven next Saturday for the first game between Yale and Pennsylvania since 1893.

Thirty-five thousand tickets have been disposed of by the Council on Athletics in this city alone, with 10,000 additional going to graduates in the East and New England.

Over 4,000 thousand will travel by special trains, via decrepid motor cars and by shanks mare. The students will occupy a solid cheering section along with the band of 35 pieces.

Pennsylvania and Yale met twelve times from 1879 until 1893, and not one contest was won by the Quakers. The nearest Pennsylvania came to emerging the victor was in 1893, when the final result was 14 to 8.

Louis A. Young, head coach of the Quakers, has decreed strict secret practice for the coming week. Much of the week will be spent in developing a defence to stop the Yale onslaughts which thus far have proved as strong as the last two years, when the Elis swept every team before it.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER R. HORTON

The medium upright swing suits the average golfer better than the full upright swing because it is somewhat easier to master. The full upright swing might give a few more yards in distance from the tee but it requires more pivot than the average man can accomplish. For the medium upright place the clubhead back of the ball and at direct right angle to the line of flight. Stand squarely on both feet. Use the square stance. The right shoulder should be slightly lower because the right hand is lower on the shaft. Start the clubhead away from the ball, with the hands. Keep it low to the ground and as the clubhead goes back reach outward with the arms. As the clubhead goes back the weight of the body will naturally pass over to the right leg. Make this leg firm to hold the weight. Let the clubhead continue back and out, always keeping possession of it in the hands, and be sure always to let it swing back. That is, do not lift it up. When it has swung entirely back the shaft will be about even with the point of the right shoulder and slightly higher, and the left shoulder should be pointing to the ball. Be careful not to lift the club—let it elevate itself naturally.

SOUTH BOSTON ELEVEN BEATS BUNKER HILL

The strong St. Peter and Paul eleven won another game from Bunker Hill Panthers by a score of 8 to 0. Walsh scored the only touchdown of the game, but failed to kick the oval over for the extra point. Lydon tried to punt out from behind his own goal line late in the game, but he was dropped in his tracks. The game was played at the Sullivan square grounds.

BITTER BATTLE BOOKED

Invaders Have a Powerful Eleven and Are Confident of Victory

And what's the big idea of all the revengeful thoughts that the Redskins bring to the Hub?

Well, as we remember this same team of copper-colored gridsters invaded the city last November like the roarin' forties and ambled out like mild cheese.

Before the game with the Maroon and Gold the avid aborigines from the sunbaked plains of Kansas, where the coyotes play leap frog with the rattler on some dutsy dune's neck, looked like the works. Mr. All-America John Levi tossed the football around as if it were a baseball. Mr. Smith had the crowd saying silent prayers for the Eagle when he flashed around the field. But the Enemy Roebuck appeared as if he had been assigned to pull off a first class mutilating job. And [illegible] the line. Every one of the redskins seemed to have the requisites of a real he-man football player.

But then came the procession.

The Eagles didn't give a hoot about these Peregrinating Pamassassetts. They properly murdered, [illegible] and mutilated the lowly redskins until it appeared as if another deal was being put over on the boys from the land where the mountains touch the skies.

The backs were in a fog; the big line bent up like a piece of macaroni that had a calling to go straight. Yet the next week, they went down to Providence and took the Brunonians with an attack that dazzled the Rhode Island city.

And now that same crowd came to Boston today with a double purpose.

First, the team as a whole was out to prove to the Bostonians that it was not a natilly decorated flivver with an asthmatic engine but a smooth running machine geared to make the Eagle take its dust. Their war whoop since last November has been rumbling over the plains "Beat Boston." And this time they really meant it.

Again Mr. Levi was eager to come back and prove that the Levi family wasn't broadcasting fairy tales when he claimed to the neighbors over on the next street that Pa Levi had a couple of rip-roaring football players at Haskell.

The entire outfit was imbued with a spirit of "win." Every move taken by the Haskell coach Dick Hanley in harding the team has been accomplished in view of the Boston game.

Herb Treat Will Analyze B. C. and Haskell Game

Herb Treat, the Boston Evening American football expert, will analyze the Boston College-Haskell Indian game at Braves Field today. Treat has been giving the football fans expert opinion on the big teams. Watch for his article in tomorrow's Boston Evening American. It will be worth reading.

Strangler Lewis In Boston Bout

Ed Strangler Lewis greatest of all the heavyweight champion of Montana, in a finish match will be the wrestlers, meeting Jack McPherson top card at the weekly wrestling show at the Grand Opera House Thursday night.

McPherson is a new comer to Boston fans but the fact that he beat Toots Mondt in Denver last month stamps him as no ordinary performer. In meeting McPherson, the Strangler will have his work cut out for him from start to finish. Matchmaker Paul Bowser was fortunate in signing this pair to meet so early in the season.

Ned McGuire the Irish heavyweight who beat Farmer Stevens last week two falls in twenty minutes, will appear on the card meeting Karl Vogel the German Lion.

P. S. A. L. GOLFERS BEGIN TOURNAMENT

New York, Oct. 12.—The Fall golf tournament of the P. S. A. L. begins [illegible] with six matches, three in the Manhattan Bronx division and three in the Brooklyn Queens-Richmond section. Team contests with twelve high schools participating will be held hereafter until November 14.

SHAKEUP IN BROOKLYN WANDERERS' LINEUP

New York, Oct. 12.—The promised shakeup of the Brooklyn Wanderers has occurred. When the Brooklyn team appears at Hawthorne Field a number of new faces will be seen in the Brooklyn lineup. Two of these, Johnny Forrest and Bobby Barr, are former players on the team who have not played for several seasons.

Providence will be the opponent of the Wanderers tomorrow, while the Boston team, winners of the Challenge Cup of the American League last year, will play Monday.

RINDGE BOWS TO CAMBRIDGE LATIN

Cambridge Latin won the Cambridge city championship by defeating Rindge this morning, the score being 6 to 0.

The lone score of the game came in the final period, when Rindge fumbled [illegible] and three successive forward passes put the ball on Rindge's one-yard line. The heaves were made by Tooth [illegible], and were received by Gibson [illegible] and McCusker twice.

Touchdown—Gibson.

Fittons Win From Village A. C.

The Fitton A. C. of East Boston scoring their second victory of the season, easily defeated the Village A. A. of Roxbury [illegible].

Mathews [illegible] halfback, scored both touchdowns. The first time in the opening period. Late in the third quarter a Fitton lineman dropped on a loose ball on the Village 7 yard line. Mathews took the ball over on the second try. Dunbar kicked the ball over for the extra point.

DARTMOUTH BALL STAR TO COACH AT ABBOT

Hanover, Oct. 12.—Ray C. Comerford, for the last three years a member of the Dartmouth varsity baseball team, has joined the faculty of the Abbot School for Boys, Farmington, Me. In addition to handling the football basketball and baseball activities of the school, Comerford will teach modern languages.

REPRIMAND FOR MITCHELL IN MAKING

Washington, Oct. 12—A reprimand for Colonel William Mitchell [illegible] appropriation for the [illegible] air service. This, according to reports [illegible] in several quarters today, is the present state of mind of the War Department, but it is subject to change at any moment.

It is reported that the high command of the army, skilled in judging the temper of the populace, has concluded that no definite good will come from severely punishing the aviator for his criticisms of departmental air policies.

But since Mitchell has admitted making serious criticisms of his superior officers, some punishment must be given him—and a reprimand will not tend to place a martyr's halo over his head.

General officers of various areas are gathering here this week, ready at call from Acting Secretary Davis to convene the court and hale Mitchell before them.

It is desired to end the trial with the least delay, not giving Mitchell an opportunity to make public further statements regarding the condition of the country's defenses.

Let Your Light So Shine

By ARTHUR BRISBANE,

Editor of the New York Evening Journal.

Generations have praised the man who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before. What shall be said in praise of men, the creators of the new RADIO ERA, whose work causes NEW IDEAS to grow in millions of minds, and brings happiness to millions of families?

NOBLE WORK

It takes into the home, direct from the human voice, or the instruments of skilful musicians, music that inspires and purifies the soul.

Radio takes wisdom from the mouths of those that possess knowledge and carries it direct to millions of listening human beings.

Radio makes it possible for the President of the United States, or others whom the people honor, to speak directly, not through cold type in newspapers, but with THE LIVING VOICE, to an entire nation.

A man possessing truth need no longer depend upon the willingness of some other man to give him a hearing.

It is no longer "He who runs may READ," but he who sits quietly at home may choose, select and HEAR WHAT HE WILL.

WHOLE WORLD CHANGED

Who would have dared predict, a few years ago, a time when it would be possible for one human being to be heard by a hundred millions.

Who would have suggested that voices of the greatest singers, magnificence of grand opera, teachings of science, music of a perfect orchestra, food for the mind and THE SOUL in a thousand varieties, would one day be brought, NOT to the FEW able to buy tickets in the grand opera house, but to the humblest home, to every family in the land.

TWO SETS FOR EACH FAMILY

Dealers and manufacturers should have in mind the importance of giving to the radio ITS COMPLETE usefulness, by establishing the truth that ONE receiving station is not enough in an American family.

It would be well if dealers could arrange a "combination rate" that would give to each family an expensive instrument, or rather, the most highly perfected instrument, since a good radio set IS NEVER EXPENSIVE, and in addition, perhaps as part of one price, a simple receiving set that could be used by young people to get dance music from the nearby stations, or to give the children their evening's entertainment.

FAMILIES UNITED

Whatever the future of radio may be, this is certain:

Those Who Create Radio

Are Creators of a New Education, a New Civilization and a Happier Family Life.

It will keep families more and more closely UNITED. It will make the home gatherings of young people under the eyes of father and mother, more and more the centre of life's real pleasures.

It will associate in the minds of children happiness, agreeable teaching, with the early home years.

And, most marvelous of ALL, the radio actually ENTERS THE FAMILY, bringing with it happiness, education, CLOSE FAMILY UNION, beauty and peace.

He who manufactures or sells a good radio set is a benefactor of the human race and should be so considered.

THE U. S. A. ONE FAMILY

This article, which I write at the request of Mr. Barrett Andrews, publisher of the Boston Evening American, treats of in a very adequate fashion the most important work of our day, which is not only keeping the INDIVIDUAL family UNITED, but actually making OF ALL THE PEOPLE IN THIS COUNTRY ONE GREAT FAMILY.

When wise teachers, men respected, are able to reach the people with their own voices, in the homes, what chance have false doctrines, teachings subversive of law, or other so-called "undermining influences" in this great republic?

KEEP SPEAKER FROM SET

Too many fans do not realize the immense advantage of keeping their loud speakers at a distance from their sets. Almost all of us have at some time or other experienced that disagreeable occurrence when the tubes start to howl. Microphonic tubes will be found in many sets. As a rule, all it takes to start them humming is to subject them to mechanical vibration.

The mechanical vibration which is most likely to affect a radio receiver is not that which would be likely to occur during ordinary handling, but that which is transmitted back into it again by the loud speaker. This seems odd, but it is nevertheless a fact.

BOSTON RADIO SHOW WILL OPEN TODAY

When the fifth annual Boston Radio Exposition opens in Mechanics Building at 1 o'clock Columbus Day, radio fans of New England will see an ex[illegible] unsurpassed by any radio show in the United States.

Nothing has been spared by Manager Sheldon H. Fairbanks to make this the greatest show. Boston holds the distinction of sponsoring the first commercial radio show in the world, back in 1922, and the exposition's slogan is "the world's first radio show and still leading."

GOING STRONG.

This year's show is symbolic of the rapid advance of the radio industry. Starting with one hall the exposition has expanded, until this year the show occupies Exhibition Hall and balcony, Paul Revere hall, Grand Hall and basement. Seats in the balcony of Grand Hall will be available for those who wish to rest and hear the broadcasting from the elaborate studios of WNAC and WEEI.

MUCH TO SEE.

It will be an energetic and tireless visitor who can cover the entire show in an afternoon or evening. Aside from being the largest show in the country in point of [illegible] the fans are again offered the outstanding features of the year [illegible] the spectacular standpoint. Last year Manager Fairbanks gave the fans a world feature by bringing C. Francis Jenkins from Washington to show his radio motion pictures.

GHOST CAR.

In following out the policy of giving New England fans outstanding features of the year, Mr. Fairbanks has secured Francis P. Houdina to bring his "ghost car," a radio-controlled automobile, to the Boston show. His car created a tremendous sensation in the streets of New York.

This radio controlled auto does everything except change tires and talk back to a traffic cop. It has no driver and no passenger, but through radio control its motor is started, ignition switched on, gears changed and brakes, horn and steering wheel operated.

Operation of the car is directed from another automobile which carries the tran[illegible] while the "AMERICAN WONDER" contains receiving equipment and controlling apparatus.

Although demonstrations of the "ghost car" are complete shows of themselves there will also be a well rounded program of entertainment in all parts of the building.

Special educational features furnished by the Radio Corporation of America have been arranged through its New England distributors, Stingell-Andrews Company; Wetmore Savage Electrical Supply Company and Atlantic Radio Company.

Probably one of the most outstanding features in the Radio Corporation exhibit is its demonstration of [illegible] radio. This shows how pictures are transmitted by radio, but the method differs from that used by Mr. Jenkins, and this demonstration should be particularly interesting to those who saw Jenkins' demonstration at last year's show.

BROADCASTING.

Visitors to the show will witness probably the greatest demonstration of broadcasting ever seen or heard in the country. Practically continuous broadcasting will be done in full view of the audience in Grand Hall. Both the Shepard Stores and the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston will [illegible]e in broadcasting direct from the stage.

These two local stations have arranged special programs featuring 15 orchestras and two bands, including the better known of the regular broadcasting orchestras known to the fans of New England.

MERCHANDISE.

Completeness will mark the display of merchandise in the miles of exhibits in the vast halls. Hundreds and hundreds of lines of apparatus—small sets, large sets, cheap sets, expensive sets, crystals and tubes, phones and speakers, a mammoth array of accessories of all kinds—will be on view. Collectively they will mark the progress of radio during the year. The latest improvement, the fruit of the toil of the world's [illegible] will be in evidence. Selection of equipment may not be easy but it will be interesting and enjoyable.

[illegible] will be the rule [illegible] to great lengths to achieve originality and attractiveness in their displays and [illegible] tremendous advance in this direction.

BEST DRESSED SHOW.

The show itself will be the best dressed radio show ever held in New England. [illegible] Grand Hall will [illegible] proscenium arch curtain, 120 by 30 feet, in Florentine jewelled style according to F. W. Cambell of the Atlantic Decorating Company, in charge of the show decorations. The rear wall of the stage will be Italian in motif, composed of three 20 by 30 panels, painted by the best scenic artist in the country.

AMATEUR SETS.

The amateur set contest invariably proves interesting and this year with more entries received should be more popular than ever. [illegible] prizes are awarded in four classes. For the first time a woman has entered a set of her own con[illegible] Miss Betty Mer[illegible] of [illegible] street, Back [illegible] set entered [illegible] class [illegible] and is good [illegible].

BIGGEST SHOW ON EARTH.

The Boston show will be the first great show in the United States where the display will be as complete as it is humanly possible to [illegible]. In New York the two shows so split up the lines on display that it was necessary to visit both to get a clear view of the season's offerings. At the Boston show the visitor will see every well-known line under one roof.

FYNUR VERNIER CONTROL

Absolute [illegible] the control of variable radio receiving sets is at last possible, for the Fynur Vernier Control, by eliminating all gears, has eliminated all backlash and lost motion.

CONTROL BY TRACTION.

In this new dial the Vernier Control operates the major control by traction only, so that the motion of the latter is carried forward or backward without the slightest break or jolt. The operator through the use of the major control is assured of a smooth and quick general [illegible] and of an instant response to the slightest movement of the Vernier which effects extreme accuracy in his finer adjustments. The Fynur made of Bakelite combines an incomparable efficiency with great simplicity and beauty of design. Furthermore, since the slightest wear on the mechanism is instantly taken up by automatic [illegible] the Fynur will be found more durable than any other Vernier Control.

THE BEST BET.

In brief: The Fynur Vernier Control is one of the most efficient Vernier Controls on the market. It can be mounted and [illegible] place by turning a single screw. It will fit any instrument having the standard quarter-inch shaft. It requires no extra holes in the panel nor any additional provision for mounting—and [illegible] greater degree of satisfaction and accuracy than has ever before been possible with any type of dial.

The Fynur-Vernier Control is manufactured by August Goertz & Co. of Newark, N. J.

IT HAS never been our policy to "amplify" ourselves to the public or speak loudly about prices.

Rather has it been our policy to stick to the well-tried principles both of Radio and customer-pleasing and let the results speak for themselves—and for us.

When we say, therefore, that our business is not run on a "loud speaker" basis we feel that we make a statement that has a particular application to Radio at the present time—that particularity being that we confine ourselves exclusively to goods which we are SURE will give satisfaction—which, in turn, explains why we GUARANTEE the quality of everything we sell.

FRESHMAN CO. GROWS FAST

Chas. Freshman Co. Inc., manufacturers of the Freshman Masterpiece Receiver, report gross sales for the month of September 1925 of [illegible] against $163,6[illegible].38 for the month of September, 1924—an increase of over 4[illegible] per cent.

The company further reports an enormous amount of unfilled orders, and at the rate that orders are being entered it is believed that sales for each of the next six months will show a corresponding increase.

Although the company recently opened a large new factory in the Bronx, New York, and another large factory in Chicago, negotiations are now under way to triple the present Chicago facilities. As soon as this latter arrangement is consummated the company will use the Chicago factory for its central shipping point, thus relieving the New York factories of the burden of shipping to the Central States.

Additional factories are planned in the near future in both San Francisco, California, and Toronto, Canada.

A GOOD ONE ON WEAF'S PIANO

The reputation that WEAF has for the honesty of piano reproduction was humorously illustrated in connection with a recent Monday night program broadcast from the stage of the Mark Strand Theatre in New York city.

A fan called in to say that he had never heard such an atrocious piano and suggested calling a piano tuner. Upon investigation it was found that the piano was supposed to sound out of tune and tinpanny since it was used in the prologue of the feature picture in a scene depicting an Alaskan dance hall in the time of '98, such as described in the "Shooting of Dan McGrew."

Mr. Plunkett had to ransack many piano stores before he found one bad enough to use.

"There she is, Dad!"

"AND I get every other station on our log chart just as easily as you got that one."

You don't have to fish for a station with an Akradyne Radio Receiver. When it's on the air, Akradyne brings it in, without any 'ifs' or 'buts.' It's merely a matter of turning the two dials to your accustomed settings,—and there she is!

SOLDERING IRON STOPS FADING

A radio fan writes Herbert Hoover that he has solved the fading problem, at least for his own set, which now brings in distant stations [illegible] the whole [illegible] neighborhood.

USES SOLDERING IRON

His method of curing the fading of distant stations is by holding an electric soldering iron over a by pass condenser in his home made super heterodyne, the iron being connected to an alternating current line. This has operated well for over a week during which WGY and other stations were brought in. Although he got some distortion on WGY's high power broadcast, he was not troubled with interference with other stations.

He also reports that when he has

ARCHBISHOPS HOUSE
GRANBY STREET
BOSTON

Radio Editor,
Boston Evening American

I have received your letter of October 1st in which you request a few words from me giving my opinion on the subject of radio. I [illegible] to say that I have never become so familiar with radio as to lose interest in it or cease to consider it one of the miracles of modern science. Every time I tune in seems to bring a new sensation.

Radio is an enormous power for good as it can broadcast to the world the most delightful feelings of the human heart and the finest and [illegible] sentiments of the soul. Nothing can be more [illegible] than its influence to reach every class of people. It is a universal factor in life.

I constantly think of what a wonderful solace radio must be to the sick and convalescent and to those who are shut off from communication with the outer world. Often do I reflect upon its efficacy to instruct and to broaden the members of a community who otherwise might grow narrow and provincial.

I hope that the people of this day will take advantage of radio to become better citizens of the nation and more ardent lovers of God.

Very sincerely yours,

W. Card. O'Connell

Hear All the Instruments in the Orchestra~

Have you heard the Garod?

Ask your nearest Garod dealer for a demonstration. Comparison will convince you that Garod's tone quality is Garod's own, unmatched, unchallenged.

HERE is a test that will convince the most skeptical that Garod's ability to reproduce with the utmost fidelity is as unusual as it is important to the prospective purchaser of a radio receiving instrument.

Listen to as many receivers as you can, receiving the performance of a complete orchestra. Then hear the same performance reproduced by a Garod. The Garod will reproduce all the instruments—the basses included—every note crystal clear, undistorted and unaccompanied by extraneous noises, regardless of volume.

This characteristic of Garod's is not an accident but the result of the most advanced engineering skill, plus early recognition of the fact that the public, once they realized the possibility of perfect reproduction, would demand it as the all important characteristic of the receiving instrument selected for their homes.

MARTHA LEE IS ORACLE TO WOMAN'S CLUB MEMBERS

"What special diet do you advise for my eighteen-months-old baby who is ten pounds underweight?" "What will take the white spots off my dining table?" "How can I reduce 35 pounds?" "May I have your recipe for Rinktum Tiddy?" "Are there as many vitamines in oleomargarine as in butter?" are a few of the questions that the morning mail brings to Martha Lee, founder of the WNAC American Women's Club, and, in spite of the pressure of the double duties of editorial work, broadcasting and club activities, every single one of these questions receives Martha Lee's personal attention and a reply through her assistant, Mrs. Marian Bustanoby.

Although the WNAC American Women's Club has only been organized since June, 1924, in these sixteen months Martha Lee has firmly entrenched herself in the hearts and homes of the 19,847 New England women who have enrolled in the club and are enjoying the many privileges of this unique organization of no dues but many benefits. They scurry through their housework each morning so that when quarter of eleven comes they can sit quietly down with their pencils and paper, or mending or embroidery, and listen to the helpful suggestions and reliable, economical recipes that come to them over the air.

MARTHA SAYS:

"The confidence that my club members show in me is the most precious thing that I possess in all this world," said Martha Lee, "and my one big hope is to always keep it and to make the morning broadcasts and the articles in the Boston Evening American of real, practical help to all these good friends. Their problems lie very close to my heart and it is a great pleasure and privilege to be allowed to help solve them.

NEVER TOO BUSY.

I am never too busy to chat with my members at our clubrooms at the Hearst Building, 5 Winthrop Square, or to answer any question that they want to ask me to the best of my ability. The letters that come to me each day are a fresh inspiration in the one big purpose of my life to make our WNAC American Women's Club the finest, most progressive and helpful organization for women in all these big United States.

PROOF OF PUDDING.

Martha Lee not only has a close acquaintance with the vital vitamines and calories of modern scientific cookery, but 20 years of practical homekeeping for her family of three. Her husky, six-foot, nineteen-year-old son, who is making athletic records for himself and his prep school is a convincing argument of the value of scientific dietetics combined with old-fashioned mothering.

OTHER DUTIES.

"Now they will be counting on their fingers to see how old I am," Martha expostulated. Every now and then someone says "Oh, I pictured you as being very fat, with gray hair and flat-heeled shoes'—which is really not a very active and interesting business woman. Martha Lee, as this interviewer can testify is strong indication that the efficient American housewife includes being attractive as a woman among her other duties.

HEADPHONE WITHOUT WIRES IS PERFECTED

London, Oct. 10.—Walter R. Whitmore, secretary of Leicester branch of the Wireless league, has perfected an instrument enabling any number of persons wearing headphones unfettered by wires to listen to broadcasting while moving about the house.

MISS CURTIS IN FAVOR OF RADIO

Miss Curtis

Boston, Mass.

Radio Editor,
Boston American,
Boston, Mass.

I am very glad to answer your letter as to the value and effects of radio. I was hesitating to write you this letter until after I should have actually tried broadcasting myself which I am doing this evening. I certainly, at this time, can give you my feelings as a listener, as to the extraordinary stretching of horizons, the broadening of pleasures and opportunities in the lives of those who are out of reach, for the most part, of the city offerings in the way of music, education and straight amusement.

The country dweller is no longer shut off, but to a greater degree than many of the inhabitants of the large cities, is in the centre of all that is going on.

The fact that the radio stations find it worth while to broadcast sermons and religious news as largely as they do, goes to prove that their audiences are asking for the most serious matters as well as on the lighter side of things.

The ways of improvement are obvious, broadening and increasing all the time.

Very truly yours,
Frances G. Curtis

WNAC Has Prepared a Welcome for You at The Radio Show

THE radio sales division of WNAC has three stellar attractions to show you at the Radio Show this week. Attractions, each one of which touches a pinnacle of radio achievement.

1. A display of Radiolas. We are the only retailers in Massachusetts who deal directly with the Radio Corporation of America and receive individual service and attention from this great producer.
2. A display of "Music Master" receivers. Here too, the Music Master Corporation gives alone of all retailers in Massachusetts direct attention and service to The Shepard Stores.
3. The Ramway Console set—Italian Renaissance Period style. That most sensational of all radio values at 88.88. And we are the sole distributors of this set in Massachusetts.

You will be welcomed with all the cordiality that is characteristic of W N A C

Transformers Vary

The output of multitube receivers often lacks the full rounded tones and the deep notes of the bass instruments. Amplification to a more or less degree, has been at the sacrifice of tone and quality.

This has been inevitable because many makes of audio frequency transformers favor certain notes above others, and amplify them with greater volume to the partial exclusion of notes outside the range.

ONLY 1 SUPER-POWER STATION

Officials of the Department of Commerce point out that the word "super power" is being misused as a descriptive term for many regular high powered broadcasters. There is but one super power station authorized, that is WGY at Schenectady, N. Y. Commencing October 3, this station employed 50 KWs on Saturday and Sunday nights only, broadcasting at other times on 3,500 watts or 3.5 KWs.

Although there are reports that a Westinghouse and a Radio Corporation station will seek authority to use 50 KWs or more no actual applications have yet reached the Commerce officials.

MANY 5000 WATTS SETS.

The other B stations on the air, all 500 watts or more, include 62 stations of higher power. The next strongest station is KDKA, licensed to use as high as 10 KWs experimentally. Then come the ten 5000 watt stations WSAI, WLW, WOC, [illegible], WCBD, WORD, KOA, WOK, WHO and WEAF. Stations WTAM and WGY follow with 3,500 watts each, while KFI and KGO each using 3000 watts are next in line. WTAS and the combined stations WJR-WCX employ 2,000 watts. There are three stations with 1500 watts, 25 using 1000 and 7 broadcasting with 750 watts. But these are all high power stations, not super power stations, the Department insists.

RADIO IN AMERICAN NAVY

What Navy Is Doing in Wireless Is Constructive for Peace or War

Commanding First District Naval Radio Communications and H. Miller, Naval Aide.

A general belief that all government departments fail to appreciate new development is wholly unjustified in one instance at least. The activity in question is radio, as utilized by the Navy Department.

Its importance was recognized in the very early days and the best available apparatus was installed on selected ships for purposes of test and improvement. A shore station, to co-operate with the ships was erected on Fire Island, just outside of New York Harbor, about 1901, and placed in charge of chosen men from the enlisted ranks. These men were required to be resourceful in general as well as good radiomen, since they were at times cut off from the shore for periods up to a month by ice. Communication from the station to shore was continuous via cable, but operation of the radio station depended entirely on the men at such times. The early record for good performance made at that time has been since maintained.

The navy first gave serious consideration to radio communication in 1899. In that year Mr. Marconi brought three of his sets from Italy to New York for the purpose of reporting the international yacht races between the Columbia and the Shamrock. The department detailed four officers to observe and report upon the working of these instruments. Following this report the battleship Massachusetts, the cruiser New York and the torpedo boat Porter were placed at the disposal of Mr. Marconi, and an experimental shore station was erected at Highland Light (Cape Cod).

HIGH POWER STATIONS.

Today the navy operates high power long range stations at Annapolis, Md.; San Diego, Cal.; Mare Island, Cal.; Pearl Harbor, T. H.; Cavite, P. I.; Sayville, L. I.; Cayey, P. R.; Darien, C. Z., and Guam.

In addition to the above the navy operates seventy-one medium and low power short range stations, also forty five radio compass stations. When the numerous shore stations operated by the navy are added to the several hundred sets aboard naval ships one gets an idea of the magnitude of our navy's radio activities.

DOK EISENBOURG

BUSY SEASON IS ON THE AIR AT WJAR

"THIS IS STATION WJAR, THE OUTLET COMPANY, PROVIDENCE, THE SOUTHERN GATEWAY TO NEW ENGLAND," and so WJAR starts its evening program whether from the local studios or the New York City studios.

The unseen audience has looked forward to WJAR, The Outlet Company, Providence, for addresses by President Coolidge and other national figures, the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and many other features too numerous to mention. Further WJAR has the distinction of being the first radio broadcasting station to continually relay programs from New York City and other points where events of national importance have been held outside of the broadcasting stations of the Bell Telephone System, which today has grown to be a national chain of broadcasting stations.

NEW FEATURE.

Saturday evenings have been silent for WJAR, The Outlet Company, Providence, but the New York Philharmonic Orchestra tempted and won the silence from the station and they have contracted to take the entire series relayed from Carnegie Hall, New York, starting at 8:30 p. m. and continuing to about 10:30 p. m. The first five concerts of the series to be under the baton of William Mengelberg and the remaining seven to be conducted by Arturo Toscanini and Wilhelm Surtwalder. The first date for the series is October 31.

SPORTS.

Surely last but not least comes sports. As in the past, WJAR has relayed the World's Series baseball games direct from the playing field, and so at this time they are relaying the contest between the Washington Senators and Pittsburgh Pirates, a play by play description vividly given by Graham McNamee, the veteran sports announcer. And for the Fall, football, the great American sport, is to have an important place in the relayed programs of WJAR. The Harvard-Princeton-Yale classic trio, the famous Army-Navy contest and others, which will include some of the biggest games of the season.

Low Wave

Radio experts throughout the country are watching with interest the performance of Station WOK, the new Chicago broadcasting station, because of its low wave-length of 217.8 meters.

HERE HE IS!

DOK EISENBURG ON RADIO

Dok Eisenbourg called up the radio department of the Boston Evening American on the telephone for a little talk, the gist of which was as follows:

Entertainment [illegible] thing on the air [illegible] so good as an advertising medium.

The popularity of radio has not increased much in the past year, but in the next two years I expect to see it arrive in force.

I was at WNAC when it first opened in 1921, and also opened WEEI with the first dance orchestra. In New England I have been pioneer broadcasting orchestra leader.

Broadcasting inferior orchestra does more harm to the orchestra than good, and if it is a commercial station it will soon find itself so unimportant that it will have to discontinue broadcasting.

Must Cover Plates

The plates of the battery should be kept covered with solution. When the solution evaporates below this point it should be renewed with enough distilled water to raise the level above the plates again.

Like Old [illegible]

Old time melodies are considered one of the most popular offerings, say the announcers at station WOK, Chicago, who say that since the station opened recently, requests for the old favorites have come in numbers equal to those for jazz and other new hits.

General Brewster

RADIO IN AMERICAN ARMY

Function of Radio in Military Strategy Described by One of Army's Ranking Officers

By Major General Andre W. Brewster, General Commanding First Corps Area

The signal communication system of an army has been often compared to the system of nerves in the human body. By means of the various nerves, reaching from the brain to distant outposts in the body, messages are interchanged, information is transmitted to the brain and orders are sent from the brain to take care of the body's needs as they arise.

The units of an army depend similarly upon a network of communication channels over which necessary information may be flashed to its commander and orders received directing the units' operations. Until recently, these channels of communication were physical. They consisted principally of wire lines over which telegraph or telephone messages could be sent and of mounted messengers or runners. These means of communication, of course are very satisfactory when they are available, but it often happens that wire lines are destroyed by shell bursts or that there is not sufficient time for their installation, and messengers can be used only for short distance communication.

RADIO IN BATTLE.

This is where radio is invaluable. Radio needs no physical channel over which to operate and when all other means of communication fail the radio functions and the commander is enabled to keep in touch with the units of his army. [illegible] the army commander [illegible] loses touch with [illegible] army [illegible] of the radio.

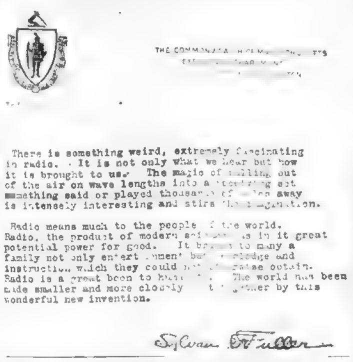
GOVERNOR FULLER'S LETTER



THE COMMONWEALTH [illegible] CHUSETTS
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER

There is something weird, extremely fascinating in radio. It is not only what we hear but how it is brought to us. The magic of culling out of the air on wave lengths into a receiving set something said or played thousands of miles away is intensely interesting and stirs the imagination.

Radio means much to the people of the world. Radio, the product of modern science, has in it great potential power for good. It brings to many a family not only entertainment but knowledge and instruction which they could not otherwise obtain. Radio is a great boon to humanity. The world has been made smaller and more closely knit together by this wonderful new invention.

England Faces a Big Problem in Broadcasting

GREAT BRITAIN is faced with a problem in the solution of its broadcasting difficulties, and in order to obtain representative opinion, Parliament has appointed Rudyard Kipling and other prominent men in different occupations to the investigating committee of ten.

The British Broadcasting Company, an organization composed of radio manufacturers, has been in charge of broadcasting in Great Britain, but its license expires in December next year, at which time it is hoped that more satisfactory arrangements will be completed. At present the press in England is campaigning for a reduction in the number of broadcasters and the abolition of fees for licenses which operators of receiving sets must now hold.

Sitting on the committee with Kipling will be a woman, Dame Meriel Talbot, former adviser to the Minister of Agriculture; Lord Rayleigh scientist; William Graham M. P., and Earl Crawford, who will be chairman. The committee will sit when Parliament reopens in November.

JEAN SARGENT AND A DAY AT STATION WNAC

Behind the Scenes at Boston's Popular Station and How the Programs Are Made

Jean Sargent, secretary of Station WNAC, the Shepard Stores, holds one of the most unique positions in the radio world today. In fact, the title of "secretary" does not adequately cover her duties, for she directs the studio organization which does the immense amount of detail work necessary for successful broadcasting. She meets hundreds of persons within a week, all of them coming with all sorts of errands; she conducts a most successful radio woman's club, and the rest of the day she assists in the arrangement of programs.

MANY DUTIES.

Many people who would have thought it would be fine to work in a broadcast station because they could hear music all day long, should try and keep up with the genial [illegible] during one of her days at station WNAC on Winter place. A [illegible] recently attempted it for one day, and he went home ready for bed and a long sleep.

FINDS JEAN.

However, he did see behind the scenes of a broadcast station under the guidance of one who knows [illegible] very well. His entrance to the studio of WNAC was [illegible] in the first minute he was given action to make a [illegible]. It took him a minute to catch his breath for so many people seemed to be doing so many different things. He finally located Jean Sargent behind a desk, which seemed much too big for her, but she explained that she needed a big desk in order to have a place to put things.

HERSELF.

Jean Sargent is the sort of person you would expect her to be. She is thoroughly human and natural. Her height is medium and she has light blue eyes with chestnut hair, which, and we hope this will not disappoint, is bobbed. She is not old at all, but young with the enthusiastic vitality of youth. Her studio is a welcoming one and fortunately we saw it used a great deal for the spirit of courtesy and helpfulness paramount at WNAC.

BEHIND THE SCENES.

We explained our errand and, of course, she would help us in any way she could. This was but the start, for from then on it was a pace to keep up with Jean Sargent. Everyone seemed to cluster around her big desk and for a while we sat and watched them come and go. "We are getting out the weekly program sheet today," Miss Sargent explained as a girl rushed in with a sheaf of papers in her hand.

PROGRAM MAKING.

"Some may wonder how we keep track of our artists and know exactly when they are to appear. We first schedule them on this 'day by day' pad and as the programs for their entertainment come in they are pinned on the back of the day page where the artist is scheduled. The [illegible] are taken on Wednesday and the program schedule for the coming week is set up by a multigraph operator and hundreds of copies are run off. We must keep constant watch for errors of any sort, and [illegible] corrections are made before the weekly or daily program [illegible] are sent out.

"After a perfectly correct copy of any program is done these are sent by [illegible] messenger to the Boston papers and the out of town papers receive theirs by mail. We must work on a strict time schedule so that no person who wants to find a WNAC program in his favorite paper will be denied the privilege."

EAGLE MODEL F IS LATEST

By E. J. CRAINE

The Eagle Radio Company's new neutrodyne receiver is twenty two inches long, eight and three quarters in height. The black bakelite panel is finished with gold trimmings and lettering. The battery switch and phone jack are also of gold. The set is designed to operate with five 201A or 301A tubes, or with four 201A or 301A tubes and one power tube.

Other striking points of improvement in the new Eagle, model F, are first its radio frequency coils.

DIFFERENT.

These coils are a radical departure from the conventional type. No bakelite is used. The wire on both primary and second is space wound on very thin cylinders of celluloise acetate. The high frequency resistance and distributed capacity is lower by actual measurement than on any other type of commercially adaptable coils. This means a greater ability to receive stations on the lower wave lengths than we have hitherto been able to accomplish in any neutrodyne receiver.

CONTROL.

Instead of a switch which changes from first stage to second stage, the Eagle model F resistance is across the secondary of the second audio frequency transformer. This permits a gradual regulation of volume instead of the two jumps which is obtained with a switch. This resistance also acts as a protection to the polarity.

CHANGED CONTROL.

In the model F, the rheostats are changed so that one controls the radio frequency tubes and the other the audio frequency tubes. The detector has been placed on an automatic filament control. With this change the sensitivity and clarity can be adjusted to the best point much more easily than previous rheostat systems.

Battery Noise

BATTERY noises versus static is the order of the day in radio. At this time of the year, as the long hot days of Summer as passing, many fans are wondering why the static seems more persistent and annoying than at any time during the Summer. The trouble in nine cases out of ten can be traced to run-down B batteries of the chemical or dry cell type. It will be found that the incessant sputtering similar to static, but never letting up, can be eliminated by investing in a set of new B batteries.

Long Live Your Tubes with the Sterling TUBE REACTIVATOR

To Keep Them Tingling With Vitality

THIS new meter-equipped reactivator works from the lighting socket to renew worn out filaments in UV 201A, C 301A, UV-199, and C 299 types of tubes. The filament emission meter shows when the tube filament needs renewing and how much better the amplification is after treatment. Your reception will be vastly improved by having each tube perform to the best of its ability. The instrument quickly pays for itself.

Price $12.50

RADIO HIGHBOY

Five-tube Sonora Radio Receiving Set, built in this exquisite English Renaissance period design highboy cabinet. A Radio for the House Beautiful.

$200

Now in Radio—Sonora's Rich, Mellow Tone and Cabinet Artistry

THROUGH the new Sonora receiving set, radio music is realistically reproduced with that rich, mellow tone enjoyed heretofore only through the Sonora Phonograph. For three years, Sonora's renowned radio engineers worked to build this set that gives true Sonora tone quality.

You'll marvel at the way it brings in distance and its unusually high selectivity. The carved Renaissance period design Highboy cabinet conceals all batteries and wiring, revealing only that the owner has a keen appreciation of artistic beauty.

In the Sonora Highboy radio is the famous Sonora tone chamber—made of many layers of water-thin, seasoned wood laid cross-grained to each other, thereby eliminating all harsh overtones.

RADIO INCREASING THROUGHOUT ITALY

In home, radio listeners-in are said to outnumber householders ten to one. While this statement may be an exaggeration, Consul Homer Remillard, Rome, advises the Department of Commerce that favorable progress in broadcasting has been [illegible] in Rome since early in 1924 and that increased numbers of radio shops handling equipment of all kinds has been concurrent with the growing public favor.

The real boom is yet to come, however, its delay being attributed to the high taxes and fees demanded by the broadcasting company and the long delays experienced in obtaining license. [illegible] impediment [illegible] the [illegible] improving.

RUSSET APPUL CERTAINLY IS EXPLODIN'

Charles Donelan Writes About His Talks Over the Radio Hereabouts

Writing [illegible] much [illegible] than "[illegible] the air." It is a simpler matter to learn out [illegible] bearings on the typewriter [illegible] to get a [illegible] Kid Static, microphonically speaking. Nevertheless, I've had a speaking acquaintance with the "mike" for the past three years and it hasn't hit back yet. Back in the days of WTAT, the first Edison station, I started broadcasting [illegible] with due [illegible] admit the novelty appealed to me. It was something new.

ROUND ONE.

Having no agricultured voice was [illegible], but nobody sent me any [illegible] votes and I was encouraged. Round one in the battle with Kid Static had me a little unsteady on the pins but game. Between the rounds I sought constructive criticism and got plenty. One person in the know said that all I needed was good diction, articulation, coherent delivery and personality. I looked up all these dollar and a half words in the dictionary and the result is what you're getting today.

BIG SISTER CLUB.

It is always your privilege to tune out and it's your own fault if you don't take advantage of the fact. I take great pride in asserting that I've signed off from all the Boston stations except Station 16. A backseat friend of mine has put forward the suggestion that some station organize a Big Sister Club. He would offer as members all the girls who have promised to be sisters to him. Why not give Cupid the air, everybody else has had a shot at it?

But to give a serious slant to this broadcasting, I venture to state that there is no more unresponsive medium in the world than a "mike." To me it is exactly like putting an ornamental tin can in front of yourself and you have to talk to it as though it was a person. The poor defenceless thing has no comeback.

Few people realize that the talkers over the radio have their remarks typewritten. They know extemporaneous discourses simply won't do. It takes a great artist to approach a microphone and spatter spontaneously with continuity and hold the listeners' interest.

WORSE THAN STAGE FRIGHT.

Microphone-itus is far worse than stage fright, but there's one advantage in not being obliged to hear your audience pat you on the pan.

But after all it is a pleasure to broadcast, especially in the field one likes. Sports have always been my hobby and profession through the medium of writing and cartooning. Everything in sports interests me from a quiet little game of penny ante to the rugged, crashing, thrilling game of football.

RADIO SPORT.

Radio fans should be charitable and not expect the announcer to record every detail of a fight, ball game or pigskin contest.

S. H. FAIRBANKS

Must Cover Plates

Charges Battery

Direct current must be used for charging a storage battery. If only alternating current is available in the house, a rectifier must be installed before the battery can be charged. If direct current is [illegible] can be [illegible] for charging the battery by [illegible] five 100-watt lamps in [illegible] one side of the line.

Improving Stations

Twenty-three stations of Class B stations are using 1,500 watts or more in an effort to reach farther [illegible] [illegible] new short-wave field which may eventually remove them farther from the proximity of the broadcast [illegible].

PIMPERNEL AND ROSEMARY

By BARONESS ORCZY

A Thrilling Story of a Love That Sweeps Down the Barriers of Hatred and Defeats a Fiend's Plots

Copyright, 1925, George H. Doran Company

CHAPTER XIII.

PETER broke off abruptly, and then said with sudden irrelevance: "Where's Jasper?"

"Gone to—," she began, and suddenly came to a halt. When she promised Jasper not to breathe a word of Philip's and Anna's affairs to Peter, she had not realised how difficult this would be. Would she be breaking her promise if she now told Peter that Jasper was in Bucharest?

"He has been called away on business," she said curtly.

Her hesitation had only lasted a second or two; she hoped that Peter had not noticed it. Anyway, when he asked "To Budapest?" she replied, without hesitation this time "Yes, to Budapest." And she added quite gaily: "He'll be back at the end of the week. You can't think, Peter, how I miss him when he is away! Perhaps that is why I am looking thin, and why my hands are hot."

"Perhaps," Peter assented laconically.

Then somehow the conversation flagged, and all the happy feeling that Rosemary had experienced when Peter first stood near her slipped away from her. She suddenly felt cold, although the evening was hot.

"Shall we walk [illegible]"

[illegible]

They walked on [illegible] side [illegible] Rosemary, at a loss what to say next, had thrown [illegible] inquiry [illegible] the cricket [illegible] her talking.

A Strange Man

At one moment [illegible]

"A bit peaky," Peter [illegible] "poor [illegible] to England [illegible]

She wouldn't come," Rosemary [illegible] earnestly. "You [illegible]

"No," she [illegible] "I didn't mean [illegible]

"Oh, I [illegible] What's-his-name [illegible] and all [illegible] rubbish. I don't think he would [illegible] He has been a [illegible] Anna and Philip out like [illegible] I expect he would just as soon [illegible] them both out of the country [illegible] Jolly good thing it would [illegible] for both of them! [illegible]

[illegible]

"Perhaps," she [illegible] with a [illegible]

"Anyway, you'll think it over, won't you?" Peter went on. "I am sure you could fix it up with old [illegible]escu. He admires you tremendously, you know."

It was all wrong, all wrong. Peter used to be so fond of little Anna. "Give her a kiss for me," were almost the last words he had spoken to Rosemary on the day of her wedding.

Suddenly she felt a longing to get away from Peter, from this Peter whom she neither knew nor [illegible]. "I'll go in now, I think," she said abruptly. "[illegible] and my [illegible] very thin." And she started [illegible] wall [illegible] before how [illegible] was getting. From the [illegible] there came a loud [illegible] which Peter gave a lusty [illegible] voice shouted "We are going in." "Right-o!" Peter responded. "Wait for me too!"

Then suddenly he gave a bound and in an instant had leaped the border and disappeared in the shrubbery beyond. Rosemary, taken completely by surprise, had [illegible] halt. From the shrubbery there came a loud cry of terror, then a swear-word from Peter, and finally a string of ejaculations, all in Hungarian, and of distressful appeals for mercy in the name of all the saints in the calendar.

The Sneak

Next moment Peter's white flannels glimmered through the foliage and a second or two later he reappeared lower down, coming up the path and half dragging, half pushing in front of him a bundled [illegible] mass, scantily clothed in ragged shirt and trousers, and crowned with a broad-brimmed hat, from beneath which came a succession of small howls.

"What is it?" Rosemary cried.

"That's what I want to know," was Peter's reply. "I caught sight of this blither sneaking in the shrubbery, and got him by the ear, which he does not seem to like, eh, my friend?"

"Leave the man alone, Peter," Rosemary cried indignantly. "You have no right to ill-use him like that!"

"Oh, haven't I? We'll soon see about that!" Peter retorted roughly. "Now then, my friend," he went on, speaking in Hungarian to the bundle of rags that had collapsed at his feet, "listen to me. You have [illegible] the weight of my boot on your spine, so you know pretty well what you can expect if you [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] led sternly, and drew something [illegible] his pocket, which Rosemary [illegible] not see. He showed it to the blackguard who promptly made a fresh appeal to the saints.

More Mystery

"Where is the letter?" [illegible]

[illegible] letter in a sealed envelope. Peter would have snatched it out of his hand, but Rosemary interposed.

"Peter," she said gravely, and stretched a protecting arm over the gipsy's hand, "the man was told not to give it in any hands but Elza's!"

"What are you two doing over there?"

"Philip, is your mother with you?" Rosemary shouted in response.

"[illegible] We are just going in."

"Ask her to wait [illegible]"

"What has happened [illegible]"

"Nothing, darling," Rosemary [illegible]

[illegible]

When they were close [illegible] down the veranda steps. Rosemary [illegible] the gipsy to wait and ran to meet Elza. In a few words told her what had occurred. Elza then came across the gravel path and said to the gipsy: "I am the Countess Imrey. You may give me the letter."

"I was told," he murmured meekly, "to give the letter [illegible] of the gracious Countess only when she was alone."

Instinctively Rosemary turned to [illegible] Peter. To her surprise she saw him just above her going up the veranda steps. He was whistling [illegible].

The gipsy whom he had so maltreated a little while ago no longer seemed to interest him. Then he called out to Elza:

"I say, Aunt Elza, if the wretch should try to kiss you, sing out, won't you?"

Elza laughed good humouredly.

"Of course I am not afraid," she said. "And I do want to know about this mysterious letter."

Rosemary would have liked to argue the point. She could not understand how it was that Peter took the matter so lightly all of a sudden. However, as Elza was playfully pushing her out of the way, whilst Peter calmly continued to stroll up the stairs, she only said with a final note of earnestness: "I shall be quite close, Elza. You have only to call you know."

"I know, I know," Elza rejoined, still laughing. "You don't suppose that I am frightened of a gipsy, do you?"

Suddenly Rosemary felt a strong desire to get away from Peter. He wasn't the Peter she used to know. She started to walk away from him.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a woman of twenty-eight. [illegible] years ago I met a man [illegible] a business way. Since then we have been close friends, [illegible] with each other [illegible]

Do you think a friendship can continue in this way? Or will there be any danger of love creeping in either of our hearts?

SINCERE.

PLATONIC love—in other words friendship between a man and woman—always has a dangerous element, especially when one of the parties is [illegible] I were you [illegible] hard and fast [illegible] have begun [illegible] reaching a stage where it may imperil the happiness and well being of three persons—yourself, your friend and his wife.

I have a young man who cares deeply for me and who has asked me to be his wife. I would say yes, but for one reason: He has broken not a few promises about taking liquor. Although his last word of honor has not been broken.

I don't mean that he becomes intoxicated each time he takes it, because he doesn't. I've never seen him that way. But that doesn't say he won't after we are married.

I have known so much unhappiness caused by drink that I am afraid to let my heart rule my head.

My folks are fond of the young man but are afraid to trust the rest of my life to one who may or may not keep his word.

I will look forward to your reply through the evening paper and I hope it will help me as you have helped others.

'BUD.'

YOU are wise my dear not to trust your life and happiness to the care of a man who has the drinking habit. Wait until he has entirely given up drinking for at least a year before you think of taking him seriously as more than a casual friend.

A WOMAN'S SACRIFICE

By Temple Manning

IN the city of Coventry, England, a famous pageant has been held, intermittently, during the past two hundred years, in commemoration of a woman's superb sacrifice. The celebration is that of Lady Godiva's Procession.

The story of Lady Godiva is based on history and was first recorded early in the Fourteenth Century by Matthew of Westminster, in this manner:

'This Countess (Godiva) devoutly anxious to free the city of Coventry from a base and grievous thraldom, often besought the Count, her husband, that he would liberate it from such servitude. But he rebuked her for demanding a thing so injurious to himself and forbade her to move [illegible] therein.

'Yet she continued to press the matter insomuch, that she obtained this answer from him: 'Ascend' said he 'thy horse, naked and pass through the city from one end of it to the other in sight of the people, and on thy return thou shalt obtain [illegible] which she [illegible] should I [illegible] to [illegible] thou give me leave? [illegible]

'[illegible] the Countess Godiva [illegible] of God [illegible] her house, [illegible] her long hair, which [illegible] her entire body except her [illegible] and having performed the journey, seen by none, returned with joy to her husband, who, regarding it as a miracle, thereupon granted Coventry a Charter of Freedom, confirming it with his seal.'

There is one unpleasant note associated with Lady Godiva's sacrificial ride through the streets, and that is more or less of a myth. When the proclamation went forth that the Lady Godiva would ride through the streets [illegible] in order to free her beloved people, every man, woman and child in Coventry hid themselves within their homes at the appointed time for her journey, so the story goes, except [illegible]. This was "Peeping Tom," who was supposed to be a tailor. It was he who dared to look slyly upon the Lady Godiva. One legend has it that as soon as he placed his eye to the crack of the [illegible] through which he hoped to see the Lady Godiva that he was stricken blind. Since that time various effigies of "Peeping Tom" have been devised. Hideous [illegible] wood [illegible] and wax [illegible] on August [illegible] the date of the celebration.

The [illegible] at different times fell into disfavor and something of its [illegible] was attached to [illegible] when commerce [illegible] stepped in. However, there is always in the hearts of the people of [illegible] a feeling of reverence for the beautiful countess who so loved her people that she agreed to [illegible] herself to save them.

FAMOUS JEWELS

By Barbara Boyne.

"HE who buys a diamond," it has been said, "purchases a fragment of eternity." Diamonds and adamant are only different forms of the same word, both signifying "unconquerable."

Certainly jewels link the present with the past in a marvelous fashion. Man lives out his brief span of years and is seen no more. But his jewel lives on and on, embodying family traditions, and around it gathers the record of buried nations or dead civilizations. Though lost, buried for centuries from human eye, it still lives on "unconquerable," until some day some [illegible] will bring it forth again "a fragment of eternity."

It will surprise many who always have thought of a diamond as a brilliant white stone, to learn that black, grey, hyacinthine, red, and rarest of all, blue diamonds have been found. The Austrian crown jewels are reputed to contain the most magnificent ruby red diamond extant. The "Hope" is the best known specimen of the sapphire blue diamond.

The "Porter Rhodes," so named after the mine in which it was found in 1880—a claim of the great Kimberly mines—is one of the finest diamonds of large size taken from the Cape diggings. It weighs 150 carats and [illegible] white, rare in any size but extremely so in large stones.

The famous "Dresden" diamond is a faultless white egg-shape stone of exceptional brilliancy and fire, weighing 76½ carats.

It was found in the Bagagem mines in Brazil in 1857 and in the rough weighed 119½ carats. Sent to Rio de Janeiro it was bought by an agent there who forwarded it to London.

In 1863 a rajah of India came to London for the purpose of buying it, but the price asked—[illegible] pounds—was too high for even his Oriental extravagance. A merchant who accompanied him fell under the spell of the great diamond.

Later, during the Civil War in America when the price of cotton went soaring skyward he became enormously rich in the cotton trade and sent his agent to London to purchase the "Dresden" diamond.

The agent, doubtless accustomed to sharp practice, got it for 32,000 pounds and sold it to the merchant for the original price, thus clearing 8,000 pounds on the transaction.

The merchant ultimately lost his get-rich-quick fortune and at his death his heirs sold the "Dresden" to the Maharajah Sivaji Ras, Gaekwar of Baroda who, always willing and ready to pay any price for a jewel that took his fancy, paid 40,000 pounds for it. The "Dresden" has remained in the Gaikwar's famous collection of jewels.

Another celebrated diamond, said to have been found by a negro in South America near the Abaete River in 1775, is the "Regent of Portugal," a round diamond of 217 carats, valued at 396,000 guineas.

MAKING OF A HUSBAND

By Anne Lisle

"ALL right, if you want me as an enemy rather than as a friend—if the Yelda contract means nothing to you . . . if you want to lose our account," said Howard Rockhill grimly, "say the word. I'll let you out."

"Please stop at once. I'd rather walk than ride another mile with you."

He stopped at once. I got out. The car shot ahead. I stepped forward to hail a taxi. And then I realized that the little envelope bag I had been carrying tucked under my arm was not there.

What was I to do?

And even as I was wondering a fierce gust of wind lashed my body and then the rain began to fall in torrents.

(This ends the dinner episode. The story now returns to where it was inadvertently interrupted.—Ed.)

"Of course I'll be proud and delighted to go into partnership with Pat," Jim said with a simplicity more in keeping with the lovely sweetness of our environment than anything that had gone before. "No false pride nor any sense of criticism has been holding me back. I hesitated because I thought I'd feel too darned avaricious hauling Pat out of the Dalton-Briggs-Tompkins firm and into partnership with me."

"Ho Hum!" interrupted Birtly Tompkins suddenly, giving a mighty cough and a prodigious sneeze. "This is a charming bungalow you have, Anne. But it gets chilly these Autumn days. We must be moving back to town, Neal. This verandah is artistic but cold."

"Tea time," Jim said quietly. "We'll adjourn to the inner reaches of this honeymoon bungalow of ours. And while Anne entertains you and visits with her long-absent Neal and B. T., Pat and I will start the partnership [illegible] by laying the table, brewing tea and [illegible] bread and cold ham. Is the programme satisfactory?"

I wondered why Neal and B. T. looked so astonished. I wondered at the alacrity with which Pat dashed to the telephone, called Jeanie and told her that he was supping with us and only wished she could get across country from [illegible] and join us. But the most amazing thing of all was the way Pat suddenly hung up the receiver as if it were full of hot coals and had burned him badly.

Then Jim and Pat whirled into activity, and B. T. began roaming around the bungalow exclaiming at its quaint and delightful architecture. So Neal and I crept into the [illegible] nook at the right of the stone fireplace and said all the simple loving things and asked all the homely questions normal to a brother and sister who have not seen each other for long months.

By the time I was assured of the health of baby Caro and of the increasing beauty and charm of Neal's second wife, formerly Mary James, B. T.'s tour of investigation was over and he came clumping across the big studio living room to join Neal and me.

"Great place," he said. "This room's about thirty by thirty-five isn't it? Doesn't it seem almost too big now and then with all its windows and doors and big nooks and that bay at the left of the fireplace? It's an [illegible]"

STOCK UP ON COCOA AT THE FAIR

Visitors at the Food Fair this week, who are not only obtaining the many generous free samples that are being distributed but are also taking advntage of the fair to stock up on staple groceries at exceptionally low pices, will be sure to pay a call at the Lowney booth.

If you are not already acquainted with the Lowney Dutch cocoa, why not add a package to your collection of good tings?

Tastes differ widely and the original Lowney cocoa and the new Dutch process each have enthusiastic followers. Cocoa, you know, contains all the food elements necessary for building the daily wear and tear on the human body—fat, carbohydrates, proteins, mineral salts which include the valuable potassium phosphates. In addition, cocoa is mildly stimulating and exhilarating if one is a bit run down through worry or fatigue. Of course, we know how chocolate has been used in army manoeuvres and in similar instances which call for great exertion and nerve strain.

The chocolate ration in the Austrian army was said to have equaled five times its weight of beef, and we are told that a pint of milk and four ounces of chocolate equal 800 calories, which makes an easily digested meal for a child or an invalid. [illegible]

Recipes for Parts of Today's Menus

SQUASH PIE

⅓ cup butter, 6c
¾ cup sugar, 3c
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. Slade's Ground Mace, 1c
1 egg white, 3c
2 yolks, 6c
1 cup cooked, strained squash, 5c
1 cup Hood's top milk, 8c

Cream the butter. Beat in half the sugar. Beat the egg with the other half of the sugar; combine the two mixtures. Add the other ingredients and heat well.

Line a deep plate with rich pie crust, lifting it here and there as you lay it on to let out the air underneath. Then with your fingers, press firmly on the paste all over the plate so that no air bubbles may form while your pie is baking. Flute the edges with thumb and finger, pressing each fluting firmly on the edge of the plate.

VEGEX CHEESE SANDWICHES

6 teaspoonfuls cream cheese, 10c
1 tsp. lemon juice, 1c
1½ tsps. Vegex, 4c
Whole wheat bread, 8c

Mix all together thoroughly and spread between slices of whole wheat bread. Delicious.

"DUZ" DEMONSTRATION AT THE SHOW

Since "seeing is believing," a test of this kind leaves no question in our minds that Duz does indeed do all that is claimed for it; that is, it removes stains while it washes.

Besides this interesting demonstration of Duz' power, to remove stains by magic, there is a real bargain offer just for Food Fair week; that is, one 10c package of Duz free with every 25c package, which is a bargain not to be overlooked.

Letters continue to come in from our club members telling how much they think of "Duz" and how it lightens the duties of wash days. Only one complaint has been received and I found that the cause for this was because our club member was not using a strong enough solution of Duz.

Do try it for your really grimy, soiled washing, as well as for your more delicate laundry—the boy's overalls, baby's rompers, aprons and hand towels will come out magically clean if you will give Duz time to do its work, either by soaking overnight or from before breakfast until you are ready to do your washing.

No More Plain Cooking!

A new element that many chefs are using—that thousands of housewives now know—VEGEX.

VEGEX owes its popularity to the fact it makes things "taste good." But VEGEX is good for you. It provides the mineral salts and Vitamin B that every human system must have to function at its best. It provides the things many folks have been taking in raw yeast. Only VEGEX introduces them in palatable form.

It is hard to interest children in what they ought to eat! It is hard to make grown-ups eat "health foods" in any form. But with a jar of vegex in the kitchen, you have available a new "skill" that brings forth cries of "More!"

VISIT SPICE EXHIBIT

One of the largest and most attractive exhibits at the Boston Food Fair this year is that of D. & L. Slade Company, the reliable firm whose name has meant pure spices to New Englanders for generations.

I am anxious that all our club members should take particular note of this exhibit to see the great variety of spices that are put up by this firm. It is really an excellent opportunity to lay in a good supply, especially just with the late pickling and preserving season in full swing.

Slade's Baking Powder is exceptionally popular, as it is an absolutely pure calcium phosphate powder containing no alum, ammonia, lime, tartaric acid or any adulterant. It is easy to believe that this baking powder is possessed of superior merit or it would not have been in use by New England housekeepers to the extent it has been for the last sixty years.

Most of us have a pleasant acquaintance with Slade's cream of tartar also, and the quick cooking tapioca is one of the most convenient of Slade's products.

Prepared mustard, poultry dressing, paprika and celery salt and a full line of spices are some of the other attractions at this booth and you may be sure that each and every product under this label measures up to the very high standard which has always been maintained by this old New England concern.

CLUB MEMBERS FLOCK TO FOOD FAIR

The Boston Food Fair, which is now being held in Horticultural Hall and which will continue through October 17, reminds one of the good old days in Mechanics Building when one ate, drank and was merry on generous samples of pan cakes, fascinating jelly desserts, frostings, salad dressings, etc.

This year's show is really unusually interesting and every housewife who is anxious to be up-to-date on new food products and short cuts in housework will be amply repaid baloony for resting between tours.

The Ladies' Philharmonic Orchestra furnishes excellent music, and there are convenient seats in the balcony to rest between tours.

Of course you won't fail to visit your own WNAC American Women's Club, Booths No. 24 and No. 25 where a group of attractive young ladies assist Martha Lee in receiv- club members will also want to visit the booths of many of their good food friends, such as Duz, Lowney's Cocoa, Tetley's Tea, Slade's Spices Linit, Junkett and Sat-Ten Sauce and Chelmsford's Gingerale.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland.

WHEN a woman voter murmurs blushingly, "Over twenty-one," it is usually a sign that she is over forty-one.

Apparently, the greatest tragedy in a woman's life is her fortieth birthday; and her greatest problem is to decide just how long she can go on being "thirty-nine."

Helen Rowland

And yet—and yet, the "forties" have a lure all their own—like Indian Summer! Spring and youth are beautiful and exciting—but Indian Summer and the Golden Forties are mellow—and fruitful—and far more restful.

In Indian Summer you can stop striving and struggling and yearning for things!

You can RELAX—and lean back and philosophize!

You can stop doing all the [illegible] things that fretted and annoyed and bored you and begin doing all the things that you've wanted to do, and longed to do and never had time to do.

Best of all, you can stop PRETENDING. And posing and acting and bluffing! You no longer have to prove to the world that you are a siren or a beauty or a Circe or a cutie or a success.

You can stop panting after popularity, or success, or romance, or thrills or the latest fashions. You no longer have to be brilliant or alluring or up to date—and you can just be sweet and charming and sympathetic—and let it go at that.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE MONOMANIAC

By Jack Woodford

EVARD thought that he had married a most exceptional woman. He came home in the evenings to a perfect dinner; was entertained all evening by remarkable [illegible] discourses, by himself, upon the subject of himself, with an [illegible] one who was [illegible]. Truly, he told himself, I am the luckiest of men.

It was towards the end of their tenth month of married life together that the great shock came. He arrived home from work one evening to find no Jeanette, but instead a neat little square of paper upon the table-top which said most mysteriously:

"Dear Evard:

"I am going to take a position and rent myself a room. Kindly arrange for a divorce as soon as possible on the grounds of my desertion of you.

Jeanette."

No Explanation

That was all, no logical explanation of her ghastly act; just like a woman! Evard roamed around the house all evening in alternate rage and despair, there was another man of course, nothing else would explain [illegible].

He longed to know the name of the other man, and so he was led to do a very caddish thing. He opened her trunk that was waiting for the expressman in the morning, all packed and [illegible], and searched it for clues. At last he came upon a diary. He took this out and began skipping through it hurriedly, reading a passage here and there hoping to find the man's name. The first entry was [illegible] after they had been married.

"Evard is [illegible]. He is all that a man should be in every way. Thoughtful, kind, loving, tender, handsome; I wonder what I did to deserve such luck! He frowned grimly over this and turned a few pages, stopping again to read.

"Evard is a moron, just like the rest of the men. He is a monomaniac, thinking, living, breathing only one subject—himself. What an egregious ass he is, well, I gave this marriage thing an even break—I'll keep a stiff upper lip and give it a good run for its money. If there is a chance in the world that I can bear up under it, I'm game."

Shocked, Evard turned on, stopping to read again, although he was almost afraid to this time:

All Jealous

"It seems that Evard is the only man of competence employed by his firm. 'The boss would be paralyzed without him. All of the other employes are jealous of him because he knows so much more than they do. He has the most remarkable ideas that have ever come into the firm. If he were to resign tomorrow, inside of three days the firm would be bankrupt.' Probably God made woman right after he made man because after seeing the way man carried on, he thought he needed something to attract him enough to keep him from annoying all the other animals to death."

Evard's hand was trembling, but he read on still another page near the end.

"This is awful. I have made a terrible mistake, because I have the bad habit of thinking. I suppose another woman would have inserted little checks from time to time to slow him up—but I haven't. I've let him brag on and made him believe that I swallow it all. He has turned into the most amazing ass and dumbfounding idiot ever heard of. It has been interesting, however, to observe what a great fool a man will make of himself if you give him plenty of rope.

"Last night, without letting him observe what I was doing, I watched the clock. From the time he came home until the time he went to bed was five hours. During those five hours he talked steadily and I said not one word, not one syllable, and he talked of nothing but the 'marvelous' and wonderful things inherent in himself and used the First Person Singular not less than 2,000,000 times. No wonder most women talk so much—they have to.

If they let their husbands have the air to broadcast at all hours, the poor male beasts would all turn into monomaniacs."

In Deep Thought

Evard shut the book with a snap. For a long time he sat deep in thought, his face crimson; and then he went down stairs to the telephone and began systematically to call every express company in the city—finally he struck the right one. . . .

At 10.30 that evening, Evard found Jeanette's rooms. She was home. She did not refuse to see him, but her face had a peculiar set look that he had never seen upon it before—he felt utterly hopeless the moment he looked at her; but he took a chance anyway.

"Jeanette," he began a little timidly, "when I read your note I thought, ass that I am, that there might be another man; so I very outrageously yielded to the temptation to open your trunk and read your diary. I—" Something seemed to take hold of him unawares.

For a moment she thought he was sobbing; but, a second later she saw her mistake. He was laughing. Gradually his mirth mounted; soon he was choking with the spasms of mirth that fought their way out of his system. Even Evard was surprised—he hadn't thought it was in him. Jeanette was amazed beyond utterance for a long time.

"There's a chance!" she announced firmly at last, "if you want me. I'm going back home with you and try another ten months—I didn't think there was any hope for you; but if you've read that diary and see the point and have enough of a sense of humor to laugh at it, there's something in you to work on."

And that's that.

By ARTHUR WYNNE,

Originator of the Modern Cross-Word Puzzle.

Here are two more sections of the "olutionary" step-word problem, the first part taking us from WASPS to TIGER in 26 steps, after which the tiger probably will do some li[illegible]y stepping around. Use the definitions below as guides in filling in the correct step-words, each of which must differ from the word on the step above by one letter only. If you get the right words, you will come to the word MOOSE on the 13th step. The second puzzle goes from WOLF to LAMB in nine steps. See if you can solve it in nine steps without any definitions.

BEDTIME STORIES

FUNNY LITTLE WRIGGLER THAT LIVES IN JAVA

By Foxy Grandpa

"I WISH I were a little older," said Bobby, with a wistful look in his blue eyes, as he gazed on the lazy shore of the island of Java, which our ship was approaching.

"Don't wish that, Bobby," I said, "unless it is something very important."

"It is important, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby.

"Tell me what it is," I said.

"I would like to be sixteen," declared Bobby.

"Why sixteen?" I asked.

"Because we are going to Java," replied Bobby.

"What has your being sixteen to do with Java?" I inquired.

"Because I would like to drink some of the coffee in Java, and you said I couldn't drink coffee until I was sixteen," was Bobby's answer.

I laughed and then said:

"You shall have a cup of it, Bobby—the very first day."

We landed and that very morning Bobby had his coffee. But he didn't think much of it, and neither did I. Because, in Java, they serve hot milk and a syrup like a man pours in a soda—only it is coffee syrup. And it is so bitter that you put only a little in your milk.

I looked up in the tree above us to see what kind of a bird it was that was whistling. But I noticed that Bunny neither looked in a bush nor a tree but kept his gaze riveted on the ground.

Not one of us spoke. Finally Bunny pointed with his paw to an exact spot on the earth. I looked and saw nothing but a little earthworm's hole.

Then in a moment out came the little earthworm, and will you believe me it was he and his neighbors who soon came out whistling at us!

"Well," I declared as we went home, "I've been in many strange sights and heard many strange noises, but this is the first time a worm ever whistled at me!"

THE FAMILY FAVORITE

By Lucy Lowell

THE story of the Little Family Favorite—Small Sister who encouraged by Mother and Big Sister to raise Cain at the expense of Little Brother—seems to have stirred the indignation of several readers.

Here is one letter:

"Dear Miss Lowell:

"From your article it is plain to see that you do not understand the place the youngest child holds in the affections of brothers and sisters and parents. Instead of getting angry when the little girl kicked his new shoes, the brother should have given her his seat if that was what she wanted, and been glad of a chance to express his affections that way!

"It is good discipline for older children to be made to give up to the youngest. It teaches them to protect those less able to protect themselves. And it is a happy thing in after life for the youngest of a family to remember the kindness of older children.

"MRS. A. M. BEARD."

I'm almost tempted to echo the expression that Big Sister seemed to keep ready for Little Brother. "Is that so!"

But I won't. Instead I will ask Mrs. Beard and those who agree with her, just what kindness to the youngest of the family may be?

Is it eternally seeing that she has her own way? Is having her own way the right training for a child who, once out in the world, must always be making concessions—giving up—or come to grief?

DR. REED'S SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. Reed, M. D.

HOWEVER profitable may be your investments you get no larger dividends from them than are to be derived from your observance of the laws of science.

This is especially true of observance of the laws of what the scientists call the unconcious mind.

Your unconscious mind is the storehouse of all your past experience as distinguished from conscious mind, which is only the little playground of your very present experience.

You can see that at any moment and at all times your unconscious mind must bulk larger than your unconscious mind.

It is being gradually revealed that this great, bulky, overtowering and overpowering unconscious mind operates according to definite laws.

One of the laws of the unconscious mind is that its mechanism may be set in operation by suggestion, which may be derived from one's self or from others.

Both of these methods are available to you for the solution of many every-day practical problems.

Why not try a little auto-suggestion on yourself? It's easy, and it can do you no harm.

You doubtless have on hand every day questions upon which you must make a decision, upon which your decision should rest on sound reasoning and concerning which you desire to be as nearly right as possible.

Suppose now that, retiring at night you go over every phase of the question that you can call into your conscious mind. Suppose that you then ask yourself frankly, honestly, earnestly, two questions:

"What is right?"

"Why is it right?"

Repeat these questions several times, preferably out loud, so that you register them not merely by the process of thinking but through the sense of hearing.

Then, without turning to any other subject, go to sleep.

What happens?

Your unconscious mind, with its infinite resources and which works all the time whether you are asleep or awake, is given definite direction. It is put upon the job, and it keeps at it until it is ready to report. It may get through before morning and awaken you to make that report. But it will report some time and you'll know it.

Try it and see what the report will be.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When there are six bridesmaids, is it necessary for them to dress alike?

(2) Should the groom purchase all the bouquets to accommodate bride and bridesmaids, or should each usher purchase one for his partner? C. U.

IT is customary for the dresses of the bridesmaids to be of the same design, and it is usual too for them to be of the same shade. I think that this is much more effective than to have them different, for it contributes to the harmony of the picture as a whole. However, in "rainbow" weddings, the designs of the dresses are the same, but the shades of the dresses are different.

(2) The groom always sends the bouquet to his bride. Usually the bouquets of the bride's attendants are sent by the family of the bride or the bride herself, since they are planned to "go with" the costumes and the decorations of the church. However, often the groom sends them, if he asks for this privilege. It is exceedingly bad form for the attendants of the groom, either the best man or the ushers, to be expected to send these bouquets. There is no reason why this should be done, since the attendants should not be given this sort of responsibility.

Martha Lee and Jean Sargent talk to the WNAC American Women's Club members at 10:40 A. M. over Station WNA.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN
VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

The very latest news is broadcast from The Boston Evening American over Station WNAC at 11:30 A. M. and 1:30 and 4:30 P. M. The last broadcast of news is at 7:30 P. M.

SUPERPROGRAM WEDNESDAY ON WNAC

On Wednesday evening at 8:30 p. m. Aaron Richmond, well-known Boston impresario, will present from Station WNAC, The Shepard Stores, a concert program by nationally known artists. Mr. Richmond will also give a most interesting talk during the course of the program under the title of "Musings of a Manager." In his talk, Mr. Richmond will touch upon the subject of radio and its effect on the concert world.

Aaron Richmond is sponsor for a series of Thursday evening concerts in Symphony Hall, and he is making it possible for the masses to hear 10 famous attractions at unheard of prices. He feels that if more general musical appreciation is to come about the prices of concerts must be made to fit the average pocketbook.

One of the nationally known artists to be introduced will be Ma[illegible] Conde, formerly with the Metropolitan Opera Company, and a [illegible] soprano with a voice of marvelous range and rich beauty. Miss Conde has played leading parts with the Metropolitan Opera Company and has appeared on the same programs with Heifetz and Max Rosen.

She hesitated some time before promising to sing over the radio, but when she heard that the station which would do the broadcasting was WNAC she quickly gave her consent, as she had heard this station frequently at her New York home and had admired its constant excellent quality. Another artist to appear on Wednesday will be Julius Risman, first violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and a violinist born and bred whose work is clear merit.

STORY OF RADIO SUCCESS

Thomas Smith Leoser, chief engineer of the Eagle Radio Company of Newark, N. J., is one of those chaps who, while he was still in knickerbockers, filled his room in his home in Morristown, N. J., with such treasures as wires, tubes, crystals, coils, bits of bakelite, spaghetti, cat's whiskers and pig's tails. Lucky for his family he had a place of his own so the kitchen, cellar and backyard did not suffer much from the result of his experiments.

He built several radio receivers, and that never-to-be-forgotten time when the Titanic, making her maiden voyage to America, ran into a huge iceberg, young Tom Leoser listened to the relief signals and heard the news of the awful disaster. His room was crowded with youngsters, who came and went all day, and far into the night, just to listen breathlessly to the latest reports from the vessels that were steaming top speed to the rescue.

After high school, Mr. Leoser entered Lehigh University, until the war came. The young man enlisted as fast as he could with the 28th Division Artillery and the next year he spent in France, taking active part with the offensive sector on half a dozen fronts, including Chateau Thierry, Aisne-Marne, Oise-Aisne, Ypres Lyc and Meuse-Argonne.

Three years ago Mr. Leoser joined the Eagle Radio Company as its chief engineer and since that time has designed the Eagle radios and many of their individual parts. The first set was a loop receiver, and was so successful that Mrs. Gerry presented one as a wedding present to the Duke of York. The young nobleman was especially pleased with the gift and a great many pictures were taken of the receiver in its place in the Duke's home.

Eagle receivers have been put to severest tests in all parts of the United States and never fail to carry off high honors. The A and B sets have no superior among the neutrodynes. They are good in appearance, durable as a piano, and superfine in performance. The new neutrodyne, model F, just put on the market is an exceptionally fine instrument, embodying advanced improvements that have been adopted only after the most careful research in the laboratories of the Eagle Radio Company. The changes are as follows:

[illegible], Leoser is a "quiet cuss" not [illegible] to talking, but he's long on [illegible]. In appearance. He has brown eyes, [illegible] humor, and under that high striving [illegible] his is the keenly active [illegible] has placed him among the [illegible] dio experts.

BRAVE WILLIS WHITELY LISTENS IN

HEROIC BOYS ARE HELPED BY RADIO

"Listening in" on a world that has been closed to him ever since the big guns on the Toul front battered him physically and mentally, Willis Whitely of Lowell, a patient at the Veterans' Hospital in West Roxbury, today retains a new lease on life through his radio speaker, presented to him by a friend through the Radio department of the Boston Evening American.

EIGHT LONG YEARS.

It was in the war-swept months of the spring of 1917 that young Whitely volunteered at his country's call to arms. He was twenty-one when he enlisted and it has been eight long years since he went overseas with the 34th Infantry of the 4th Division. Eight long years since the war which sent him out radiantly strong, returned him to his native heath, wounded, dazed and a victim of the most tragic disease modern warfare metes out to its warriors—shell shock.

SHELL SHOCK.

"I came back from it," stated Willis Whitely gamely today, "on my feet, but that was about all.

"No one will ever be able to know what my radio has meant to me and to the other men in the ward who share in it. Most of us in the infirmary ward are not able to work in the gardens, at the looms, or do the handcraft work the other healthier patients are able to enjoy. Our radio has brought new life to us.

"When the static or air conditions cheat us out of the radio it's a pretty blue day for us. It's the one living link we have with the outside world, and it's absolutely the most necessary thing in our life."

HEALING RADIO.

Clustered about the loud speaker as it disbursed its magic tricks of opera star following lecturer, news flashes on the heels of jazz orchestra—heart-rending victims of war's cruelest disease, in wheelchairs and on cot beds, listened, all eager attention in place of their usual pitiful apathy.

"STAND BY."

"Station WNAC. Latest news flashes broadcast direct from the offices of the Boston Evening American. Please stand by for further announcements."

And stand by they did. Many of the men who share in Whitely's loud speaker are not able to hold a newspaper in their hands. But straight over the silent air from the home offices of the Boston Evening American comes their connection with the world and its doings. Several of the patients stated that it was the "meat" of the day's radio program to them.

SPORTING SPIRIT.

The "hot off the reel" flashes from the World Series holds the center of the invalid veterans' interest at present. They arise in the morning with all the excitement of children on Christmas morning, the physicians stated, and they note an increased vitality and a more normal outlook on the part of their patients. Bets, "dope" on how the scores are going to bat "today," and faith in the series' announcer as in the family doctor are displayed by the men.

For the seriously ill veterans—those who are not able to stand the stentorian voice of Whitely's loud speaker, individual bedside head receivers have been installed from a central radio, set up in the Recreation Hut by the Veterans' Bureau.

As for Whitely himself, his own renewed grip on life brought to him through the friendly offices of the radio, has in turn been broadcast to his fellow comrades.

Bread cast on the waters, returns with manifold blessings—a Christian doctrine runs. Even so does the miracle of the modern age, broadcast by a charitable heart, return its manifold human rewards.

HIGH IDEALS IN SERVICE FOR 67 YEARS

Dating back to its inceptions, 65 years ago, the house of M. Steinert & Sons has stood for the highest ideals in both products and merchandising. The original business was founded by M. Steinert and since that time three sons have entered into the business. These three sons are Adolph, Albert and Alexander. Later on Robert Steinert, son of Alexander Steinert, took an active part in the business.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Yesterday was a gala day at the Food Fair, and I can't tell you what a pleasure it was to meet so many of my good friends and members. I hope that all the rest of you will plan somehow to take in the Fair before it closes Saturday, as it is not often I have the opportunity for the pleasure of a personal word with you.

And now for our Questions and Answers. First, from Valley Falls, Rhode Island, a request for

CHEESE BALLS

Whites of 3 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
3 cups grated cheese
A dash of pepper
Sifted bread crumbs

Whip the egg whites to a stiff froth with the salt; stir in the cheese and a dash of pepper. Form the paste into balls the size of walnuts, roll them in sifted bread crumbs, fry in hot fat, drain on brown paper, and serve very hot.

RECIPE NO. 1684.
RUSSIAN RAREBIT

Piece of butter, size of a large English walnut
1 small onion, chopped fine
3 slices of green pepper, chopped fine
1 pound young American cheese, cut small ½ cup cream
½ cup stewed tomatoes
1 tablespoon flour
1 egg, well beaten
Salt, paprika, and mustard

Cook the onion and green pepper in the butter until tender. Add the cheese and half the cream. Add the seasoning. When the cheese is melted, add the tomatoes. When the rarebit is very smooth, add the flour mixed with the remainder of the cream. Add the egg. Serve at once on toast or rarebit crackers.

Mrs. J. B. of No. Abington is having trouble with her gas range and asks for suggestions on its proper care.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR THE CARE OF A GAS RANGE

Clean the top, ovens, and the removable drip pan, frequently. Clean the broiler griddle and pan every time it is used. If burner holes become clogged, clean them with a piece of wire. When the burners become greasy remove and wash them thoroughly in soap, or soda, and hot water. Never black the burners or top grates. Keep the air inlets on the shutter at the front of the burners near the levers clear of dust. The suction at this point draws the dust, which will cause the flame to burn yellow or red instead of blue. To keep the range free from rust, rub it frequently inside and outside with a cloth oiled with any kind of oil or grease, except kerosene or one containing salt. Use some of the cheaper cooking oils or oils sold for this purpose. Give the oil rub while the range is warm. The broiler pan and rack should be kept out of the range when oven is being used or it will rust, warp, or chip. Leave oven and broiler doors open for a few minutes after lighting the oven burners, and after extinguishing them. This will dry the inside of the range and prevent rusting.

When properly adjusted the gas will burn with a blue cone one-half inch high; there will be a slight colorless flame above the cone. If the cone is short and noisy and has a greenish color, there is too much air, and in this case the gas may fire back in the mixer, making a popping noise. If, however, the flame burns with yellow tips, not enough air is drawn in at the mixer, resulting in inefficiency and soot deposit on the cooking utensils. The amount of air supplied to gas burners is adjusted by the round metal slide in front of the burners. Many ranges have an adjustable orifice to regulate the flow of gas. This is located at the entrance of the air mixer; this adjustable orifice may be operated by means of a pair of pliers. Turning it clockwise increases the flow of gas; turning it counter-clockwise decreases the flow. If the flame burns yellow when the air shutter is wide open decrease the gas until the flame burns with a blue cone. If more heat is required, the gas should be increased and the mixer opened. If you do not succeed in making these adjustments, call your gas company and a service man will be sent to you.

Mrs. E. H. P. has an oven thermometer and asks what the temperatures are that correspond with, quick, moderate, etc. I'm glad to give her this table:

OVEN TEMPERATURES

Very hot	450-550 deg. Fahr.
Quick	400-450 deg. Fahr.
Hot	350-400 deg. Fahr.
Moderate	300-350 deg. Fahr.
Slow	250-300 deg. Fahr.
Very slow	225-250 deg. Fahr.

Filament Switch

A new filament switch designed by a prominent manufacturer uses the standard two spring jack with silver contact points, which are said to insure perfect make and break of the battery circuit.

The principal advantages of using a jack type of switch are that it harmonizes with the other jacks on the front panel and can be utilized as a support for a subpanel or brace for the front panel. The switch is mounted in the same manner as a jack.

Classified Advertising
Indexed, Standardized and Popularized

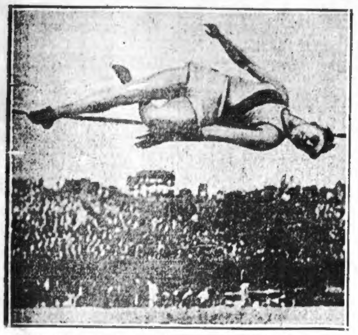
Knowing HOW

That's the Important Thing, in High JUMPING, or Wise LIVING



This is Harold Osborne making a high jump of more than 6 feet 7 inches. Notice his position in the air.

In all effort on this earth, the first thing is TO KNOW HOW, or at least TO LEARN how.

To make a high jump, such as the wonderful athlete is making in this picture, or in foot racing, hurdle racing, billiard playing, shooting at a mark, or cooking—everything depends on KNOWING HOW.

Ask a young man, ignorant of athletics, "How would you go about jumping a high bar?" The answer would be, probably, "I should jump up in the air as high as I could and come down on the other side."

If he were five feet high, he would expect, as he went over the bar, that his head would be about five feet higher than his feet.

No man living could jump anything like six feet, if he jumped in that way, straight up into the air and over.

This picture shows how necessary it is to KNOW HOW, even in such a simple thing as using the muscles and natural strength of the body.

Who could imagine that a man, breaking the high jump record, would look, not as though he were jumping but as though he were actually LYING DOWN IN THE AIR?

If you read that this was magic, and that this young man could lie down in the air, and stay there, on a narrow bar, you would say, "Well, he seems to be doing it."

KNOWING HOW tells the high jumper that he mustn't waste his strength trying to lift his feet six feet above the ground, and lift his heavy chest and head five feet higher.

The object in breaking the high jump record is TO GET YOUR FEET OVER, and at the same time to waste as little strength as possible in pushing your head and the rest of your heavy body far up in the air.

If you are not succeeding in life as well as you think you ought to do, look at this picture again and ask yourself, "Have I taken the trouble to find out HOW it OUGHT to be done?"

You know that no ordinary boy, untrained and untaught, would take this position in a high jump. It would be impossible. If he did, he would fall on his left ear.

What applies to high jumping applies to the more important things in life, especially to the task of MAKING LIFE A SUCCESS.

The right kind of young man seeing how important it is to know how, before you try to jump over a high bar, will also ask himself whether he has investigated thoroughly HOW to jump over and pass the men that are ahead of him in the race for success.

Sun Shines on Aroostook

And the Business Weather Is "Generally Fair and Promising" Everywhere Else in New England

The "smilingest" man in New England today is the Aroostook County farmer. He was selling his potatoes last [illegible] he cared to sell them—for FOUR DOLLARS A BARREL.

"Many," says a letter from Mars Hill, "are holding back, expecting the price to go to FIVE dollars, which looks extremely probable."

Less than one year ago, Aroostook potatoes were a drug on the market. Some were sold in Houlton for less than ONE dollar a barrel, or not enough to cover the "labor" item of the big grower. Others went to the starch factories, more to the hogs, some were given away.

Now, the pendulum swings back again. The potato thrived better in Maine than in the other potato States. The demand is big and the Aroostook crop plentiful. A great and important corner of Maine faces a long Winter complacently.

But the farmer is not the only New Englander who has "perked up" a bit. The tanners are doing better. Hides are up and the demand for footwear is greater.

Worsted mills in Rhode Island have been running at 70 per cent. of their capacity, as compared with 50 per cent. as recently as January.

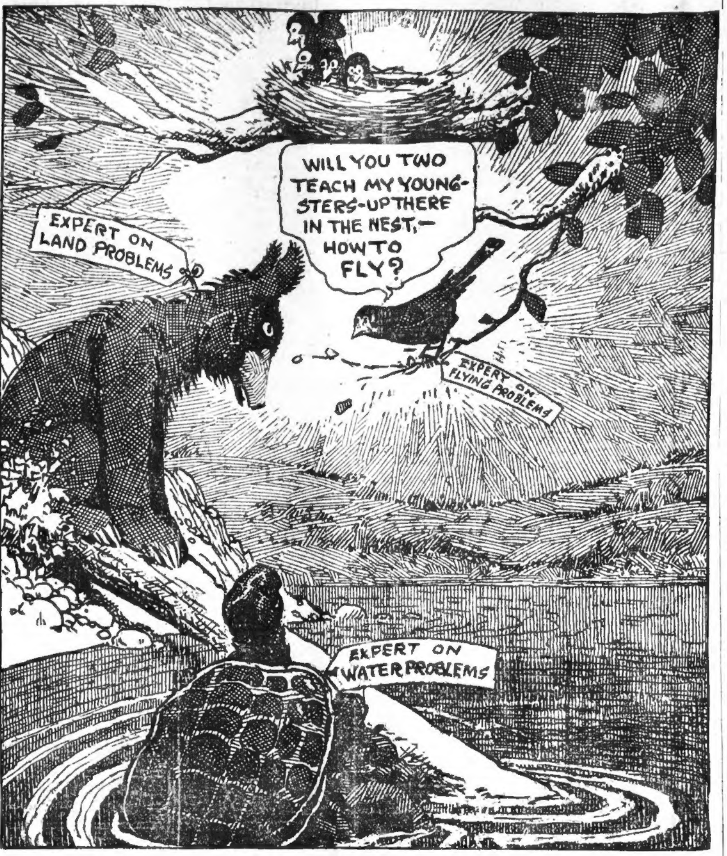
If Nature Adopted Our Air Defense Policy



WILL YOU TWO TEACH MY YOUNGSTERS-UP THERE IN THE NEST,—HOW TO FLY?
EXPERT ON LAND PROBLEMS
EXPERT ON FLYING PROBLEMS
EXPERT ON WATER PROBLEMS

It should require no labored argument to convince Congress of the wisdom of and necessity for an independent aircraft department, with a secretary of aviation to manage it.

In view of the recent disclosures following Colonel Mitchell's exposure of the incompetence of army and navy officers regarding aviation, the people expect that the Nation's air force will be put on a modern, practical basis, with a separate department of aviation, and with competent men, experienced in the science of flying, in charge.

The absurdity of having our air forces in control of men who are unversed in the problems of aviation should be apparent to all. The proposed change is doubly necessary, not only because of the technical knowledge required, but because aviation is becoming even more important than the Army or the Navy for the national defence.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

MILLIONS of dollars were spent on concrete highways last year, but so far the State hasn't begun to pave the road to success.

IT is still full of detours.

THIS is about the only road in the United States that isn't crowded on Sunday.

YOUR flivver may knock all the time, but opportunity only knocks once.

ONE man said that when opportunity knocked on his door his wife was talking so loud he couldn't hear it.

HE quit his job so that he could be home when it came.

HE wanted to climb the ladder of success, but he couldn't find anybody to hold the ladder.

HE finally tried to climb up by himself and fell off the ladder.

HE says it's too bad that a man can't climb to success in an elevator.

WEALTH can only be reached by work, but it's hard to find anybody now-a-days that you can work.

THE average man has to travel along the road to success in a flivver. If he's lucky he can come back in a big car.

WE were his opportunity and he grabbed us.

TO be a success you must be all wrapped up in your work. Of course this isn't very encouraging to a man who sells fly paper.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

—By MARCELINE D'ALROY—

ON "HAPPINESS"

WHO WANTS HAPPINESS?
Why, ALL THE WORLD
Wants it, and SEEKS
It all the while.
MOST people want a
LOT of happiness,
ENOUGH TO LAST THEM
For EVER; Well!
The only way to get
THAT much is
To MAKE IT FOR ONE'S SELF.
People who look to ANOTHER for happiness
Generally find
TROUBLE.
And why not?
NO ONE should Put the WHOLE WEIGHT
Of his happiness
On ANOTHER'S shoulder.
It seems, the BEST way
Is not to be GREEDY;
Want a LITTLE, TAKE a Little, GIVE a little And HOPE for
Just a little MORE
Each DAY; and on WHAT you did the
Day BEFORE will depend
Whether you GET IT.
HAPPINESS is in One's OWN HEART, so
WHY SEARCH OUTSIDE?

Save a Life

To the Friend of the People:

Your "Save a Life" campaign is an admirable enterprise. It stirs up the indifferent. There are many of these around driving automobiles. An auto driver ran me down the other day on Summer street. When I told him that he was careless, he replied: "You were in my way." These drivers think that they own the streets. They drive recklessly near a crowd on a crossing waiting to get over. Then grin when they have frightened you.

Radio Keeps Him Home

To the Friend of the People:

The radio keeps hubbies at home these days. That's one of many things in its favor. Before the radio, hubby used to say after gulping down his dinner: "I am going out, will be back in an hour."

Now we women know from long experience what that meant. It often was midnight before he returned from the local club.

The radio keeps him interested in his home. After the evening meal, he rushes from the table, puts in the plug and listens. Much more we are all gathered together hearing it. It's a family party around the radio.

Triplets Study Together

To the Friend of the People:

What do your readers think of this? Triplets studying in the same educational institution, from the same books, wearing the same style of clothes, all athletes and the shortest of them measuring six feet, three inches, in his stocking feet.

Their names are Kenneth, Kelsey and Kermit Gray, and they are studying in the East Maine Conference Seminary. Can any one match this?

Sunday Sport Laws

To the Friend of the People:

Give all the credit you can to Superintendent of Police Michael J. Crowley for enforcing Sunday laws. South Boston Sunday sports with entrance fee in any shape are illegal. I can say this for the benefit of people who do not know the Bill of Rights in the State constitution. I say it also for the defense of Superintendent Crowley, who is not afraid of enforcing law, no matter whom it hits.

AN INTELLIGENT EMPLOYE WORKS BEST IN OWN WAY

Forcing such persons to change their method to meet your individual taste often upsets their ability to exercise a special talent that would be to your advantage.

When you find an employe who has a good natural way to do things, why don't you try to improve his way, instead of changing him over completely into your form.

Many a good writer becomes a bungling one because of the many times he has been obliged to change his style to suit different whims of changing bosses.

The most successful golf instructors have learned that it is unwise to change a middle-aged man from his natural way of handling clubs, to that of the "pro" or the method best adapted to young people.

By DR. FRANK CRANE

FOUR hundred and thirty-three years ago the son of a poor Italian weaver made himself one of the great figures of history by claiming America for the Old World.

During these four intervening centuries the land that Columbus discovered has grown rich and powerful. Its inhabitants enjoy blessings coveted by man the world over. It has given the Old World the example of a government based on faith in the common people.

We, who live here today, have passed, in many things, far beyond the little Italian admiral peering into the unknown from the bridge of his plunging little cockleshell sailboat. We have passed on in our understanding of physical things. We talk of atoms and bacteria and seismographs. We have passed beyond him in methods of travel, organization and industries. We have advanced in communication, general education and the average length of life.

In our highly complicated civilization of today exactly the same qualities of character make for greatness that did in the simpler existence of four centuries ago.

These are: Self-control; 2, Humility; 3, Courage. In human character these are like the three legs of a tripod. Without any one of them it loses its solid basis.

He demonstrated his iron control over himself when he refused to give in to discouragement during the long years when he met only ridicule and rebuff. He showed it day after day when in the face of fears and mutiny he held like steel to his great determination and in the log book recorded simply each day: "This day we sailed West."

He showed physical courage. He faced the natural hazards of the sea and the vague nameless terrors of the unknown—the imaginary sea serpents and the generally believed danger of falling off the edge of the earth. His courageous heart and iron resolution were shown by those last three days when he kept the mutinying crew sailing on into the unknown.

He also possessed that rarer courage, intellectual and moral courage. At a time when it was generally believed that the earth was flat he followed what he thought to be the truth in spite of ridicule and the danger of religious persecution. Both mentally and physically he had the courage of his convictions.

The world would be infinitely better and mankind radically stronger if we could all catch up with Columbus in the possession of these three elements of character.

GROWING TREES ON SLOPING LAND

By Garrett P. Serviss

"We are readers of your articles and would like to ask: Can a greater number of trees or plants of any kind, grasses included, be grown on hilly land than on level land, when planted equal distance apart and fertility the same? Some contend hilly land has the advantage. I claim growing surface is represented by the area of air.—W. R.

YOUR problem is of the same nature as that involved in the different heating effect of the sun's rays in Winter and in Summer.

Let us first represent by a simple diagram the respective relations of a sloping and a horizontal surface to a single set of parallel lines, which we will call the upright stalks of plants or trees.

You know, of course, that through a curious natural adjustment of the action of gravity all plants tend to grow in a vertical direction whether they stand on a plane or on a hillslope. Sometimes the resulting distortion of the plants is a pathetic sight. They seem to be writhing in a desperate struggle with the law of gravitation.

The Diagram

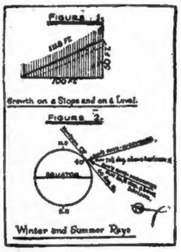
In our diagram the grade of the slope is 1 in 2. The length of the base (representing level land) being put at 100 feet, and the height of the top of the slope at 50 feet, we can, by simple geometry, calculate the length of the slope, which comes out about 111.8 feet.

But the stems being all parallel and equally spaced (horizontally), have the same number of root-stalks whether they grow on the level ground or on the slope. It follows that more land surface is covered by the same number of plants growing on a slope than if they grew on a level.

It is true that if you could compel the plants to keep their stems at a right angle to the ground, a greater number might be grown on a slope than on a level of the same horizontal extent. But it is not the nature of plants to grow that way; so the supposition is an impracticable one.

There is another point which you may care to consider from the viewpoint of practical agriculture—Would the plants on the slope be equally well nourished as the same number on the level? They are better aerated, but the soil in which they grow, besides being probably impoverished, receives less solar energy. This brings us back to what I said about the Winter and Summer sunshine.

In Summer the north pole of the earth inclines sunward, and the sun "runs high" in the sky, so that its rays descend upon the soil at an angle more or less approaching the vertical, in accordance with the latitude. In Winter the pole inclines away from the sun, and the latter runs low, not very high above the southern horizon in the north of the United States and Canada.



The effect of these differences in the angle at which the sunbeams strike the ground is the chief cause of the contrast between the temperatures of Summer and Winter. The solar rays, like the stems of trees in a pine forest, are all parallel with one another.

Straight From Sun

They come straight from the sun to the earth. Just as the growing plants occupy more ground when on a slope than when on the level, so the sunbeams cover more space on the earth's surface when they strike it at an angle than when they descend upon it vertically.

Not only are the same number of rays distributed over a greater surface, but they also pass through a greater cubic mass of air, so that the intensity of their heating effect is relatively diminished both upon the ground and in the atmosphere.
